Berrien Board Blasts 'Politics' Of US-31

By LARRY MACINTYRE
Staff Writer

The Berrien county board of commissioners yesterday adopted a resolution accusing the state highway department of ignoring US-31 in Berrien "to the point of criminal negligence."

The board urged the governor and state highway department to "rise above petty politics" and immediately start construction on a four-lane freeway to replace the existing two-lane road between St. Joseph and Niles.

The resolution charges that Gov. William Milliken held up construction of US-31 because area legislators "did not vote for his pet income tax plan a couple of years ago." It also charges that the highway department is seeking revenge against Indiana "for past sins on the I-94 link-up."

Lad Stacey, chairman of the finance committee, said the resolution was worded strongly so it would be sure to get the attention of state officials. Stacey, of Berrien Springs, drafted the resolution which was recommended for adoption by the finance committee.

"Sometimes I feel the best approach is straightforward, say what you mean and let the chips fall where they may," Stacey told his fellow commissioners.

He said the state has ignored four previous resolutions asking for action on US-31 that were adopted by the board within the past seven years.

Stacey also displayed a bumper sticker the finance committee ordered printed as a way of publicizing the US-31 problem. The sticker said, "I drive US-31 pray for me."

Questioned after the meeting,

Stacey said the finance committee ordered 1,000 stickers printed at a cost of $300 paid by the county. He said the stickers can be obtained free from the office of Roger Petrie, county coordinator, in the courthouse, St. Joseph.

The latest announced construction plans for US-31 is scheduled for June or July.

Here is the text of the county board resolution:

Whereas, the State of Michigan and more especially the state highway department has neglected US-31 in Berrien county to the point of criminal negligence, and Whereas, US-31 four lanes seem to be extended north each year to handle occasionally heavy tourist traffic during our short summer season while Berrien county is neglected although traffic is so heavy several hours each day that all 31 miles of our two-lane become a slow moving impassable traffic jungle, and

Whereas, US-31 at Berrien Springs is the scene of traffic tie-ups and accidents many times yearly because of a narrow hill and curve and a temporary bridge that was built 31 years ago, and

Whereas, the state highway maintenance division with their typical sensitivity to our area's needs repaired this bridge recently on a Friday afternoon, blocking traffic for miles on the highway and blocking every intersection in Berrien Springs, factory workers were blocked in their parking lots and in Berrien county it is a 30-mile drive to bypass the Berrien Springs bridge if you know the back roads, and

Whereas, there are straighter, smoother and wider roads in the Upper Peninsula that seldom get plowed in the winter than US-31 in Berrien county, and

Whereas, it has been reported our governor has held up construction of US-31 in Berrien county because our area legislators did not vote for his pet income tax plan a couple of years ago, and

Whereas, it has been reported also that behind the scenes, the Michigan state highway department is seeking revenge against Indiana for past sins on the I-94 link-up,

Now therefore be it resolved that the governor and the state highway department forthwith stop neglecting the lives, health and welfare, economic and transportation needs of the citizens of Berrien county, that they rise above petty politics and forthwith construct the most neglected highway in the state, US-31, Berrien county.

Be it further resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to the governor, state highway department, area legislators and if this resolution is ignored like the last few have been over the years, that we are hoping the personnel of the highway department and the governor's office will pray for us, we who must drive US-31 in Berrien county.

Resolution Urges Construction Now

struction plans for the US-31 freeway set a target date of 1983 for completion. The 31 mile stretch would run from the state line in Bertrand township to I-96 and I-94 in Benton township.

Whereas, US-31, Berrien county, is the connecting link of all north-south traffic that flows between Michigan and central Indiana including South Bend, Indianapolis, Louisville and points south and is the only two-lane highway left, and

US-31 STICKER: Berrien county Commissioner Lad Stacey, of Berrien Springs, applies bumper sticker, "I Drive US-31 — Pray For Me." County commissioners had 1,000 stickers printed in campaign to get state highway department to speed up construction timetable for replacement US-31. WAY'S CLEAR FOR CUPID

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A Van Buren county judge struck a blow for Cupid and male liberation yesterday.

Probate Judge Frank D. Willis, acting as a circuit court judge, struck down a section of state law that says men have to be 18 to marry.

He ruled males are just as entitled to marry at age 16 or 17 with parental consent as are females, clearing the way for the wedding tomorrow of two Paw Paw teenagers.

To deny males the same right that women have to marry under age 18 would deprive males of their right of equal protection under the law, Judge Willis said. He handled the case in circuit court because Circuit Judge Meyer Warshawsky was presiding over a trial.

At the same time he issued his order, Judge Willis also waived the normal three-day waiting period for a marriage license.

The decision will enable Dean Bush, 17, and Linda Brown, 19, to be wed Saturday in the First Christian church of Paw Paw.

The couple went to court after they were denied a marriage license because Bush was not 18.

Their attorney, William Hamilton, said in a Van Buren circuit court hearing Wednesday that the couple had been led to believe by county officials that they could marry when Bush was 17, and had already made wedding arrangements. Hamilton told the court the couple has a 14-month-old son.

The attorney contended that the law was arbitrarily discriminatory on the basis of sex.

Miss Brown, who graduated from Paw Paw high school last year, said the couple had been prepared to be married in Indiana, which allows 17-year-olds to wed with parental consent, if things had not worked out.

"We had wanted to get married earlier when Dean was 15, but we knew we couldn't support ourselves," she said.

She added that Bush, who turned 17 in April, has a job at a local gas station and has been able to support her and their son, Ronnie, since she moved into an apartment three weeks ago. Bush, who will be a junior at Paw Paw high school next year, will continue working the 4 p.m. - midnight shift after he returns to school, Miss Brown said.

"I think we were smart in waiting," she said. "We'll have more of a home life now that Dean will be able to support us."

Judge Willis said that among the cases he based his decision on was a 1976 U.S. Supreme Court ruling which struck down an Oklahoma law which allowed females 18 and over to drink 3.2 beer, but males

Predict Record Low Blueberry Harvest

By JOSEPH HERMAN
Staff Writer

Blueberry growers in Michigan can expect the smallest crop in the state's history this year, according to the Michigan Frozen Food Packers Association crop guesstimate. In fact, the harvest of all Michigan fruit crops is expected to be less than normal this year.

The processors forecast a small apple and grape harvest as a result of damaging frost in late April and early May. A more promising picture is seen for Michigan's peaches, while cherries will be below average but above last year's very short crop.

The food packers made the prognosis at their 21st annual guesstimate meeting held Thursday at the Benton Harbor Holiday Inn.

The packers estimated the blueberry harvest will be 13.5 million pounds, only about 45 per cent of a normal crop. While the spring frosts were blamed for some of the blueberry loss, it was reported that 23-below zero temperature one night last winter over the main blueberry producing area from Grand Junction to Niles was a major cause of the damage.

Michigan is expected to produce a tart cherry crop of 134 million pounds out of the 188 million total predicted for the nation. The 134 million figure is down from the state average, but a 50 per cent increase over 1976 totals. Last year's harvest was 84.9 million pounds.

Michigan's apple harvest is estimated at 11.3 million bushels, down 6 per cent from last year and more than 25 per cent from the average for the last five years. Average production for the state is 14.6 million bushels.

The 1977 guesstimate for Concord grapes is 24,500 tons in Michigan. Average production since 1972 has been 38,700. Last year's extremely small crop was 14,500 tons.

Peaches were given the most favorable forecast by the packers, but it was added that a great deal depends on moisture conditions throughout the state. Drought conditions are reported as the most serious threat to peach production from South Haven to the northern portion of the state. A total production of 46 million pounds is expected this year, down only eight per cent from average harvest years.

No report was given for the state's pear crop due to a lack of interest by processors and the extensive frost damage reported for pears throughout the state. Only one processor in Michigan is reported handling pears.

Other guesstimates for Michigan crops were: Strawberries: 14 million pounds, down slightly from average 15.4 million.

Plums: 9,900 tons, down about 30 per cent from average. Sweet cherries: 29 million pounds; average since 1972, 42.8 million pounds.

Winning Numbers

DETROIT (AP) — The winning numbers in Thursday's regular weekly Bureau of the State lottery Michigan game are: seven-four (74) and zero-two-seven (027). The winning number in Thursday's Michigan Bureau of the State Lottery Daily Game is: eight-two-two (822).

$5 MILLION PROJECT BLOATS

Lid Put On LMC Center

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

Lake Michigan college trustees last night clamped a lid of $5 million on the cost of a new community center after learning that the estimated cost of the complex has skyrocketed to $9.8 million.

The center originally was to be financed by a $5 million U.S. Economic Development administration grant, aimed at creating jobs locally and approved for LMC early this year. Site work is now underway on the Napier avenue campus, just east of the main building, and completion is targeted for January, 1979.

Cutbacks ordered by the board include landscaping, reduced parking lot, equipment, and the elimination for now of an overhead bridge, linking the center to the main college building.

Revised plans and a model of the center will be presented to the public at the next board meeting, rescheduled to 6:30 p.m. Thursday, July 7, at Win Schuler's restaurant, Stevensville.

LMC President James Lehman in a related matter said it should be known by July 7 what affect a $3.5 million bond issue will have on local taxes. The board last February authorized the borrowing of $3.5 million through the sale of general obligation bonds that would pay for a portion of the community center. The bonds also were to further equip existing buildings and improve the campus. A tax hike of less than a mill was predicted then.

Last night, the board voted to sell the bonds to Harris Trust and Savings bank, Chicago, which offered the lowest net interest bid of 5.055 per cent. The bond payments run for 20 years (1978-1997).

Lehman said other funds for the center will be sought from private sources. He said the recently organized Lake Michigan college foundation will spearhead solicitations.

Lehman said the foundation drive will be supervised by Dr. Walter Browe, executive vice president, and Charlie Field, dean of continuing education and community services.

The board approved the promotion of Kenneth Riley, from assistant dean of continuing education and community services to associate dean, and assistant to the president. Lehman said a salary increase is provided in the budget, but the amount hasn't been determined.

Lehman said the skyrocketing cost of the community center came largely through suggestions by citizen groups on what it should include. Lehman also cited inflation.

Trustee Charles Huizenga of Niles made the motion to hold the cost of the center to $5.5 million. His resolution also included the following points:

Maintain the present planned size of the center at 131,000 square feet. Set priorities on equipping the center to start with revenue-producing items, followed by equipment for education purposes and community use. The resolution also calls for the college administration to use its own judgment on where site costs can be cut.

Details of the $9.8 million cost estimate were reported to the board by Architects Kenneth Fitzgerald and Rick Maxley of Warren Holmes Co.-Kenneth Black associates, Lansing.

They said while the cost of the bridge between center and main building hasn't been determined, it probably would run between $300,000 and $1 million. The board agreed to drop the bridge before hearing Huizenga's motion.

The architects also listed tentative costs leading to the $8.5 million ceiling: Building, $6.5 million; site work, $670,000; equipment, $448,000; planning and management, $560,000; capitalized interest, $102,000; bonding costs, $10,000; and contingency, $210,000.

The architects said equipment needed for theater and convention use in a typical college-type center normally runs about $1.1 million.

While the center originally was to be financed by the $5 million federal grant, architects' plans shoved the cost to over $6 million by last December, a month before the grant was approved. The $9.8 million estimate was first made public last night.

In another matter, the board approved a plan for the college to award an additional associate degree to any student who meets all requirements that include 15 additional semester hours of "C" credit or higher toward the second degree. Lehman said it's hoped that more students would enroll if an additional degree were offered.

The board also agreed that a portion of its July 7 meeting would be closed to the public in order to discuss a request by campus maintenance personnel that they bargain for a new contract agreement. No details were reported.

AUTO CARRIER ROLLS: This truck loaded with eight new Buicks ran off westbound lanes of I-94 one mile west of Grand Mere road, Lincoln township, and rolled on its side at 12:10 a.m. today resulting in minor damage to $48,000 cargo, State police from Benton Harbor post reported. Troopers said driver Robert F. Vergamini, 37, Dolton, Ill., was not injured in crash. They said Vergamini told them truck's trailer began to rock after he swerved to avoid a car, sending rig out of control. Driver was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions, police said. Wreckers were at scene early this morning to begin clean-up process. (Staff photo)

Summer Travel Season Means A Lot Of Dollars

The summer travel season is building toward its peak, both in this country and in Europe, and current indications are that 1977 will be a banner year for tourism here and abroad. Americans took slightly fewer long-distance trips by car in the first three months of this year than in the same period of 1976, the American Automobile Association (AAA) reported, "the trend is toward increased travel for summer." Requests for passports so far have been running about 15 per cent ahead of last year.

Americans who plan to travel extensively through the country by car should be prepared for higher transportation expenses. According to the AAA, driving an average, intermediate-sized American automobile will cost 20.2 cents a mile this year. That comes to $202 for a 1,000-mile trip. In 1975, the cost of driving the same-type car was 18.3 cents a mile, or $183 for a trip of 1,000 miles.

But the budget-minded vacationer can easily find ways to cut corners, no matter what the destination may be. For example, "budget motels" can pare the cost of overnight accommodations on the road. "Despite prices that might indicate severe austerity," U.S. News & World Report noted, "most budget motels have air conditioning, television, wall-to-wall carpeting and, in some cases, swimming pools. Eliminated are cocktail lounges, conference rooms, spacious lobbies, bellhops and room service." Prices generally range between $12 and $20 a night for double occupancy.

Tourism is a major industry but it defies precise definition, encompassing as it does food, lodging, transportation, and related services. It is, moreover, the country's fastest-growing industry, according to the U.S. Travel Service (USTS), an agency of the Commerce Department.

David L. Edgell, director of the USTS office of policy analysis, said earlier this year that in 1976 "world receipts from international tourism reached about $40-billion — an increase of 18 per cent over 1975. The U.S. share of that $40-billion amounted to nearly $7-billion — and was 18 per cent greater than in 1975." If certain assumptions are correct, he said, foreign-visitor arrivals to this country will increase from 17.6 million in 1976 to 43 million by the year 2000.

Tourism is Michigan's second biggest industry, headed only by the auto business, according to figures compiled for 1976 by the Michigan Travel Bureau in Lansing. Direct tourism expenditures totaled a whopping 3.942 billion dollars. Direct and indirect expenditures were almost twice that high: $7.017 billion. Direct employment was 137,826 persons; and the total for direct and indirect combined was 204,000.

Every state in the Union has its tourist attractions, but some are more popular than others. An informal poll by the USTS found that the top five "natural wonders" were Grand Canyon, Yellowstone National Park, Niagara Falls, California's Redwood forests, and Mount McKinley. In the "man-made category," the five winners were Golden Gate Bridge, Mount Rushmore, the Houston Astrodome, the Statue of Liberty, and Hoover Dam.

About half a million Latin American visitors are expected to provide a welcome lift to Florida's tourist industry this summer, which is generally considered the "off-season" there. They will spend around $400-million in Miami, local tourist officials say, before heading on to Walt Disney World near Orlando.

The Latin visitors are more than just frosting on the cake. John Sutton, co-owner of a clothing store, told Associated Press that "If it weren't for the Latin tourists, at least 60 per cent of the stores on (Miami Beach's Lincoln Road Mall) would have to close, and I would be among them."

ANOTHER GENERAL TOLD TO ZIP IT

Editor, General Robert Close, commander of Belgium's 18th Armored division, has been ordered to zip his lip.

The general, who recently lectured at the NATO Defense College in Rome, made the mistake of giving his honest opinion on the Soviets versus the NATO nations in war.

According to Close, it would take the Soviets and their allies about 48 hours to overrun West Germany.

General Close is the author of "Defenseless Europe." He asserts that Warsaw Pact forces could advance to the Rhine River so quickly that NATO could never retaliate with nuclear bombs, for fear of killing West German civilians.

Again the above quote from the general is according to plans by the architects of One World. Had the allies, (NATO now) considered not to kill German civilians by the thousands including refugees from Russia and Poland, when they threw magnesium spears on them in Dresden? Should the above quote from the general come about — and it will, as it is planned by those One Worlders — pity the U.S. soldiers stationed there.

Will they dig limestone too in Siberia for the Soviets like the German POW's were forced to by the allies.

God help us, pray as you never did before.

NIXON ACCUSED OF MISSTATEMENTS

Editor, Had it not been for the pardoning according to inside sources, the special prosecutor definitely would have indicted the former president for obstruction of justice. Instead of the epic court drama, Nixon has now presented his case to the nation via television. He told interviewer, David Frost, that he considered himself under oath. If Nixon had really sworn to tell the truth, he could be indicted for perjury.

They counted at least a dozen misstatements. Perhaps the most dramatic was Nixon's account of the pardon itself. From the private notes and recollections of the man who negotiated the pardon on President Ford's behalf, we can now cite the discrepancies. Ford's personal lawyer, Benton Becker, kept a careful record of his visit to San Clemente in September, 1974, to discuss the pardon and the disposition of the Nixon tapes. Becker flew to California with the ex-president's attorney, Herbert J. Miller. Although they arrived shortly before midnight, they immediately went into a three-hour huddle. With Nixon's aide Ronald Ziegler. The talks resumed the following morning in Ziegler's office.

Frequently, Ziegler and Miller slipped out of the room for whispered consultations. Nixon later told David Frost that a pardon "isn't, of course, necessarily an admission of guilt." This idea, he said, was legalistic petting. On the contrary, Becker made plain to Nixon's negotiators before the pardon was granted that it would constitute an admission of guilt. Nixon told David Frost of his agony (what about the public's agony they have gone through) as he said, "When you receive a pardon, you have to sign a piece of paper that says, I accept the pardon. I asked Miller to leave the room after an hour of agonizing thoughts. Well, okay, I'll do it" and so he signed.

In fact, Nixon never signed a pardon at all. The only paper he signed at San Clemente was an agreement with the government establishing dual ownership of his papers and tapes.

Do You REMEMBER?

— 10 Years Ago —

Construction and site development bids that ran 19 and 12 per cent, respectively, above estimates for starting the new campus of Lake Michigan college, left the board of trustees in a quandary Friday night. Unless construction is started by June 30, the college may lose a $500,000 state building grant that expires then. But there are not sufficient funds in sight to make up the nearly $900,000 difference, nor can the building plans likely be pruned back enough to fit the funds budgeted.

Thirteen faculty members whose service to the Benton Harbor school system totals 245 years, have entered retirement with the close of books this year. Three of these, Miss Mary L. Dixon, Clyde W. Thorp and B. A. Swanson, each has logged a quarter century or more of serving to the Benton Harbor system.

BERRIEN SPRINGS, June 17 — A contract for the construction of foundations and cement floors for two commercial exhibit halls at the Berrien County Youth Fair grounds was awarded at last night's meeting of the fair board. will not be erected until some time in the future. Tents will be placed over the two floors during fair time.

Blacks Ask More Than Andy Young

WASHINGTON — The liberals are mad. Women are uneasy. And now blacks, whose support was crucial in last year's election, are beginning to have second thoughts about Jimmy Carter.

Although no major black leader has yet launched the sort of frontal assault on the new president which George McGovern unloaded last month, a growing number of influential black political activists privately criticize Carter's appointment record and political priorities.

"I really have mixed emotions," said Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus. "On some things, he's doing splendidly but on others, we've been sorely disappointed."

Mitchell and other black leaders are especially upset at Carter's apparent intention to stress balancing the budget above all else, even if achievement of that goal requires a go-slow approach on jobs and social programs.

The president has threatened to veto the $60 billion Labor-HEW appropriations bill which contains funding for nearly all of the social programs which benefit low-income and minority families in this country.

He has outlined a welfare reform program which blacks fear could wind up hurting more people than it helps. He has proposed a new minimum wage so low it would leave millions of Americans, many of them black, with incomes below the official poverty level.

And he has done little, as yet, to attack the stubborn problem of black unemployment. The latest Labor Department statistics show that while overall unemployment dipped last month to 6.9 per cent, its lowest level in more than two years, the jobless rate for black workers has actually increased since May 1976. At 12.9 per cent, it is more than double the unemployment rate for white Americans and among black teenagers, joblessness has climbed to an astronomical 38.7 per cent — compared with 15.7 for their white counterparts.

"Around the country, people who worked like hell for Carter last year are starting to ask me whether we led our folks down the wrong path," Mitchell told us.

Blacks, of course, are not the only voting bloc to feel slighted by Carter's performance to date. Organized labor is thoroughly disenchanted, and a good deal less reticent about saying so.

But the black contribution to Carter's election is far easier to quantify than that of other groups which would like to claim credit for his victory. According to an analysis by the Joint Center for Political Studies, 90 per cent of the black vote went to Carter last year.

In 13 states — mostly in the South and Midwest — the black vote was larger than Carter's margin of victory. Those states accounted for 216 electoral votes of the 270 needed for victory.

That is not an insignificant political debt, by any definition. And given Carter's claim to a special emotional rapport with black Americans, it is not surprising that his election raised the expectations of the black community.

The only real surprise, in fact, is that he has managed to escape pointed public criticism this long.

"I think Andy Young has been serving as a protective blanket for Carter," one veteran civil rights leader told us.

"I'm sure it's not deliberate on his part, but in effect he has distracted black attention from the fact that the emperor has no clothes, economically speaking."

It is apparent, however, that affection for the controversial United Nations ambassador is not going to deflect black criticism of the Carter administration forever.

"Andy Young is fine," said Parren Mitchell. "but he is not a job."

Bets On Capital Croupier School

WASHINGTON — When the Federal Commission on the Review of National Policy Toward Gambling went out of business a few months ago, it issued a report which was universally ignored.

The report confirmed what any alert soul already knew — state lotteries and other forms of officials gambling are rapidly spreading in many parts of the country.

New Jersey's approval of casinos for Atlantic City is the latest and most spectacular manifestation of this trend.

Even in the nation's stuffy capital, where Congress refuses to serve beer or wine in its buildings, local officials have seriously debated installing gambling devices.

So perhaps it was inevitable that the first international croupier school should open here in the shadow of the Capitol dome, instead of in Las Vegas or Reno. The operator, a former Monte Carlo croupier named David Harris, decided that gambling is the coming thing and that this international crossroads is the place to train for it.

A black tie and champagne party launched the now enterprise on fashionable Connecticut Avenue where for $600 the fine arts of the profession will be taught in a six-week course. Pupils will specialize in roulette, craps or blackjack, with an eye to jobs in New Jersey or the more established Caribbean resorts.

Florida's emotional battle over equal rights for homosexuals was only the beginning. The Federal government is getting into the act.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development has just issued new regulations opening public housing to homosexual couples if they can show a "stable family relationship." And a bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives which would prohibit discrimination against gays in job opportunities, housing and areas of other fundamental rights. Introduced by Manhattan's Edward Koch, it has 38 co-sponsors. That's not enough to get the measure very far, but it's more than the 26 co-sponsors it attracted two years ago when it was first introduced by Bella Abzug.

White House press secretary Jody Powell is a mass of contradictions, like his boss. He drives a battered old Beetle but lives in one of the city's plushiest areas, near the mansion of Nelson Rockefeller which is now for sale at $8 million. The Washington Press Club recently put on a musical skit spoofing the Carter team. To the tune of "That's What I Like About the South," the stage Jody Powell sang: "I keep all reporters snored. Briefing them in cracker code; Then it's home to Foxhall Road. That's what I like about the North."

Carter Granted Tax Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, whose 1975 taxes are being audited by the Internal Revenue Service, reportedly is directing his tax attorney to resolve any borderline tax questions in favor of the government.

This was reported Thursday by White House Press Secretary Jody Powell, who also announced that Carter has been granted a second postponement, to July 15, for filing his 1976 tax return. The 1976 joint return with wife Rosalynn normally would have been due April 15.

Another Chapter In Watergate Saga

"Let's put Watergate behind us," Richard Nixon used to plead. But five years after the June 17, 1972, break-in at the Democratic National Committee, the biggest political scandal in the nation's history still is front-page news. The next chapter in the Watergate affair will unfold on Wednesday, June 22, when former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former White House Chief of Staff H. R. (Bob) Haldeman begin serving prison terms for their roles in the Watergate coverup conspiracy. U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica sentenced both men to terms of two and a half to eight years. Mitchell will be the first Cabinet member to have served time since former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall went to prison in 1931 after being convicted of charges arising from his involvement in the Teapot Dome scandal.

Where are all the rest of the President's men? Former Nixon aide John D. Ehrlichman already has served eight months of his sentence — identical to Haldeman's and Mitchell's — at a federal work camp in Safford, Ariz. The only other person now behind bars for Watergate-related offenses is G. Gordon Liddy, the former FBI agent who became counsel to Nixon's 1972 re-election committee. Liddy's 20-year prison sentence was commuted to eight years by President Carter. He thus will be eligible for parole on July 9.

Life has returned to normal, sort of, for several other Watergate figures. E. Howard Hunt, John W. Dean III, and Charles W. Colson are busy on the lecture circuit. Egil (Bud) Krogh Jr. teaches at a California college. Jeb Stuart Magruder works for an organization that helps teenagers. Gordon C. Strachan is with a Utah law firm. Dwight L. Chapin and Alexander P. Butterfield have jobs in private industry — Chapin is publisher of a magazine called Success Unlimited. As for the whereabouts of Deep Throat, we can only guess.

'Make-Work' Irks County Board

CETA Jobs Draw Fire

By LARRY MACINTYRE
Staff Writer

The Berrien county CETA program came under fire for funding "ding-a-ling" and "make-work" jobs during a free-wheeling discussion among members of the Berrien county board of commissioners yesterday.

During the course of the discussion, Board Chairman Nancy Clark told commissioners that some $8 million in CETA funds have been made available to the county in recent months for a variety of job programs.

The term "ding-a-ling" was used by Commissioner Victor Greer to describe certain CETA jobs he said could be criticized if investigated too deeply.

"We might open ourselves up to a lot of criticism reference some of those other ding-a-ling projects," Greer said while trying to dissuade commissioners from killing a CETA position authorized last week by local CETA officials.

Despite Greer's arguments, commissioners took action to stop the Michigan Migrant Legal Assistance Project in Berrien Springs from using CETA funds to hire someone to make a survey of the needs of migrant workers.

Funding for the temporary job had been approved last week by the county manpower planning council, a 25-member committee appointed by the board of commissioners to parcel out all CETA funds allocated to Berrien county.

Yesterday, commissioners overruled the manpower planning council's decision by an 8 to 3 vote with two abstentions.

"Harrassing growers, that's what it amounts to," said Commissioner Kenneth Wendzel while outlining his objections to that particular job.

Voting with Wendzel to kill the job were R.L. Burkholz, Ernest Chase, Otto Grau, Walter Heyn, Clyde Lohmough, Roland Oselka and Lad Stacey. In favor of allowing the job were Greer, W.C. Askew and Edward Matix. Abstaining were Mrs. Clark, who is also a member of the manpower planning council, and Richard Camp.

CETA is the commonly used acronym for federal job funds provided under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Mrs. Clark said the manpower council has approved "a great many projects that won't make Berrien county a better place to live."

She said that with $8 million in CETA funds, the council has not had enough project applications to choose from selectively.

She said she intended to provide commissioners with a complete report on all CETA projects already funded.

She stressed several times that she thought the manpower planning council was doing an excellent job even though it has not had the best projects to choose from. She said council members give careful study to every application.

Commissioner Chase said he believes the CETA manpower planning council is funding a great number of "make-work" projects.

"The entire program stinks, let's face it," Chase said.

Mrs. Clark said the council, often referred to as the CETA board, had approved the migrant survey job on a narrow 9 to 8 vote. Mrs. Clark said she feared that if the council was overruled, some members might lose interest and drop off.

"If the CETA board is perturbed, I'm sorry," said Commissioner Stacey.

Referring to the migrant survey job, Stacey said, "I can name you half a dozen growers in the area who will have nothing to do with the migrants because of harassment."

Commissioner Wendzel said the CETA board's decision to approve the migrant survey was "in direct defiance of this board."

He was referring to a resolution passed by commissioners in February, 1976, which declared the county board's unanimous opposition to the Michigan Migrant Legal Assistance Project as a "needless waste of taxpayers' money."

Berrien Going After Jail Bids

The Berrien county board of commissioners yesterday voted to seek bids for construction of an addition and remodeling of the Berrien county jail in St. Joseph.

The bids will be taken on plans developed by Lansing Architect Clark Ackley who has estimated the work would cost about $6.5 million.

Commissioners say that with belt-tightening in all departments, the county can come up with only about $5 million over three years.

Taking bids will provide commissioners with actual figures, not estimates, said Roger Petrie, county coordinator.

If the bids run high, portions of the project will be cut out to keep the price about $5 million, Petrie said.

Petrie said the architect has already dropped a pistol range and a large garage from the plans.

The board reserved the right to reject any and all bids and to make any deviations as deemed necessary. All bids must be firm for 45 days.

Plans for the jail addition and remodeling were unveiled last month.

The additions include construction of a third floor over the present jail and the addition of two wings also three stories tall extending off the present structure toward Wayne street.

The expansion is needed to alleviate overcrowding, commissioners have said. The county has also been under pressure from the state Department of Corrections in the past few years to bring the jail into compliance with new standards including one that calls for one prisoner to a cell.

In other action, commissioners: — Voted to allow the county Economic Development Corp. to issue self-liquidating revenue bonds to help Printco, Inc., purchase a printing plant in Niles owned by Niles Newspapers Inc. Printco, a subsidiary of Greenville News Inc., Greenville, Mich., has announced plans to purchase the plant for $1 million provided that the industrial revenue bond issue was approved. Printco said commercial printing such as newspaper insert would be done there.

— Voted to apply for $235,800 in state disaster funds to recoup extra expenses incurred by the county during a blizzard last January. Lt. Tom McCall, the sheriff department's disaster preparedness officer, said he would also instruct Berrien county municipal governments in the procedures for applying for the disaster aid.

— Donated $13,000 to the Berrien County Historical society for operating and maintaining the old courthouse in Berrien Springs.

— Voted to turn over $5,000 to the Region IV Area Agency on Aging.

— Voted to appropriate $1,500 for maintenance at Rucky Gap park.

Crash Puts Cyclist In Hospital

A Buchanan man was listed in serious condition this morning in St. Joseph Memorial hospital after the motorcycle he was riding struck a chunk of debris on Brownstown road and went out of control, crashing west of Gast road at 9 p.m. Thursday, Berrien sheriff's officers reported.

Officers said William C. Smith, 48, of 320 Moorland, was westbound on Brownstown road when he struck a chunk of loose asphalt in the roadway. Deputy John Gast said Smith's cycle traveled 50 feet out of control before crashing west of Gast road on the boundary between Lake and Weesaw townships.

Gast said Smith was not ticketed.

Free Park Lunches Will Begin Monday

Free lunches in the park for youngsters will start Monday at 13 sites in Benton Harbor and Benton township.

Announcement was made by Larry Nielsen, director for the Benton Harbor Area Parks and Recreation board, sponsor of the meals. This is the fourth year of free summer lunches.

The program will run Monday through Friday, except July 4, through Aug. 26, a total of 48 days. A maximum of 3,500 meals will be served daily, Nielsen said.

The lunches are paid for with money from the U.S. Department of Agriculture channeled through the Michigan Department of Education. Cost of the meals will be about $145,000 depending on the number served.

Nielsen said $14,700 will be spent for administration. This is part of the grant for the program and will be used to pay 34 part-time supervisors.

Food will be supplied by two vendors — Bobo's Restaurant, Benton Harbor, low among three local bidders, and Stewart Sandwiches, Granger, Ind., which was selected among two out-of-town bidders. Nielsen said Bobo's will supply one-third and Stewart's two-thirds.

The first year of the program a maximum of 2,250 lunches were served daily. Last year it was 3,000.

Stevensville To Prepare Hall Payment Schedule

The Stevensville village council last night ordered Village Treasurer Erwin Pechner to work out a payment schedule for the proposed, $35,000 purchase of the present Lincoln township hall at 5768 St. Joseph street.

The village wants to buy the hall, which has been appraised at $41,700, for use as a village hall. The township opened the village's purchase bid at its meeting Tuesday, but took no action on it until a payment schedule is worked out.

The township is building a new hall.

In other business, the council voted to adopt a special assessment ordinance as presented by Trustee Donald DeMorrow. The ordinance is written to cover any special assessments districts, including the $50,000 Kirk Court drainage project.

The council, sitting as a zoning board of appeals, waived a hearing and granted a special use permit to Kenneth P. Zielke of 2429 West John Beers road to establish a gas station with auto repair shop and wrecker service at 5515 Red Arrow highway. The special use permit was granted with the stipulation that wrecked cars be kept out of sight.

The council granted a permit to Guenther Helling of 2797 West John Beers road to construct a two-story beauty shop and office building facing Fairview avenue. The permit was granted subject to construction of adequate detainer wall and proper drainage.

Mr. Ira J. Vliet, 5540 Ridge road, was granted a permit for a sewer hookup that cuts across Ridge road between 5586 and 5588.

Carl Kalb, trustee, was appointed assistant chairman of the zoning committee.

Also last night, the council gave permission to the Tri-Unit Fire department to hold an auction sale July 15, and to hang banners in town to advertise it. Proceeds will be used to buy new equipment.

The village treasurer was given permission to change tax billing for the village from First National bank of Southwestern Michigan to Berrien county's computer system.

The council voted to charge $10 plus incurred expenses for the first five zoning hearings already held in May. Fees for any other zoning hearings will be determined on an individual basis until an established fee can be set.

Lab Will Examine Truck Brake Parts

Part of the brake system from a pickup truck involved in a fatal accident Wednesday morning in Sodus township was sent to the Michigan State Police crime laboratory in Holland yesterday.

Asst. Prosecutor Paul Maloney said the master cylinder and at least one wheel brake from the pickup truck driven by 15-year-old Daniel was schoene will be examined.

Sheriff's officers reported

Schoene said the brakes on his pickup failed when he was westbound on Hartman road approaching a stop sign at the intersection of River road. Deputies said his vehicle failed to stop and ran onto River road, into the path of another pickup truck driven by Stanley Nutant, 78, of Sodus, who was killed in the crash.

"We have to know whether the brakes were in working order before we decide whether to authorize any charges," Maloney said. "Negligent homicide is a potential charge in this type of investigation," he added.

Schoene, of 5807 South Pipestone road, Sodus, was not licensed to drive on the highway, according to deputies. He wasn't injured in the crash but his sister, Bonnie, 14, a passenger, was released after treatment at Berrien General hospital.

Also given recognition during the dinner was Ed Hatch, one of the society's first presidents.

Mrs. Stanley O. (Phyllis) Miller, outgoing treasurer, reported income for the 1976-77 season as $51,425 and expenses of $54,297. Additional income for the symphony was in the form of memorials to R.T. Herkner, Dean Hogue and Mrs. W.T. (Sylvia) Watt. Mrs. Miller also reported prospects are good for a balanced budget for the 1977-78 year.

Howard Paxson, special gifts chairman for the 1977-78 campaign, reported the symphony's goal for the next season is $81,000. He said $23,000 in special gifts is already on hand.

The ticket sales, she said, represent only about $8,000 of the next year's budget.

ONE TEACHES DURING BOMBING

Students Serve In Far East

Editor's Note: Marilyn Thomsen who holds a master's degree from Loma Linda university, is a staff writer in the public relations department at Andrews university where her husband, Calvin, is a seminary student. Both are Californians. This is the fifth in a series of six articles.

By MARILYN THOMSEN
BERRIEN SPRINGS — "I had more time than I've ever had before, just for people. This helped me to adjust my priorities and I learned to love people more," said Dave Mosher. "I went to Japan with an open mind, ready to accept cultural differences. As my Japanese language ability increased, my understanding of the culture increased with it."

It has made me much more tolerant of other people in their different ideas. . . . Nothing surprises me any more," explained Linda Welch.

"It helped me become more sensitive to others — their ideas, their way of doing things — and to accept these as different, but not right or wrong," said Bruce Bauer.

These are ways in which the lives of Andrews university student missionaries have been affected by their service in another country.

Their memorable experiences often involve people whose lives they were able to touch in a special way.

"The other SM and I took two sisters and a brother from a family to the city to show them a little bit of life outside their village," Linda wrote about an experience in Pakistan. "We took them to the Intercontinental hotel, where they encountered their first revolving door and elevator, and for the first time felt hot water come out of the tap. We also took them to the airport so they would have an idea of the size of jets, helicopters, and so forth. To see their reaction to everyday things we take for granted was priceless."

Of all the Andrews student missionaries, none served under more difficult circumstances than Ed Neudorf, an SM IN Cambodia during the Indo-China war in 1972-73. He taught English conversion classes and did private tutoring and church work.

"I reflect many times on my experiences, the circumstances in which I was working, as well as the challenges presently existing. Being human, I have many times had to reevaluate my thinking on the gruesomeness of our experiences in the midst of the Indo-China war. In one sense, it was a horrible and pathetic experience. It has helped bring into clear focus the true goals and values on this earth."

"I know I helped many young students as well as more aged adults in English classes and in understanding the message of love and salvation," he continued. "But I like to think that I helped many people by speaking a word of encouragement in their hopeless and seemingly futile situation. I helped individuals to have hope, in themselves and others, and to begin to believe in God. That was the greatest experience."

Neudorf was a friend to the Cambodians and identified with them. "Many times I was asked, 'Why would any young man want to come to an unpleasant situation like this?'"

While he hates to talk about the war, it was the background to all his activities in Cambodia. "We were constantly surrounded by the Viet Cong, North Vietnamese, and Khmer Rouge, and we felt boxed in, in a sense. We never went more than two miles outside the city (Phnom Penh). At night we had an 8 p.m. curfew, when the shooting and bombing started. We could stand in our house-and-school complex and watch the countryside being lighted up with flares in preparation for nighttime bombing.

"My last month there was especially tense. The American B-52s started bombing around the clock. It seemed hardly possible to keep the students' minds on books and lessons. At that time they just wanted to talk with one another and me, and share their concerns. It gave me a valuable time to have them practice their English, as well as to draw together, and for me to inspire them with my hope and understanding. It was a great encouragement to me, since I had no Americans besides my two fellow SMs to confide in."

His reaction: "I'll never be the same."

Neudorf presently makes his home in British Columbia, Canada.

Mosher who spent two years in Japan, was a junior at Andrews university last year and Bauer who spent a year in Japan as a student missionary, returned to Andrews where he received his bachelor of arts degree in 1969 and his master's degree in 1975. He is currently in Japan as director of the Seventh-day Adventist English language school.

More Women Disease Prone

Men are generally considered more prone to coronary heart disease than women. Women of child-bearing age appear to be "protected" from heart disease although after menopause incidence is similar to that for men.

However, in recent years, heart attacks in younger women have been increasing steadily. This raises serious questions about the role of stress on women as they move into more responsible positions in business and about the need for women to take steps to protect their hearts the same as men.

First Meeting Set Monday

COLOMA — The first meeting of the newly formed Coloma-Watervliet Chapter, American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), will be held Monday, June 20, at 10 a.m. at Coloma township hall.

Officers will be elected, according to Edward Cusak, chairman of the steering committee.

All persons 55 years of age or older are invited.

IRRITATING LACK

You may be tempted to slip into your sandals without any luster but if you do, don't be surprised if irritations develop during the day — on your feet and on your personality.

Be Patient With Elderly

EAST LANSING — Don't yell, don't raise your voice, and do watch your language when you're talking with the elderly. Be patient, face your listener, and speak clearly.

That and other advice on hearing and vision losses, all of which are universal, gradual and organic, was given to instructors, administrators, nurses and other health aides at a Michigan State university conference on aging.

Susan Hejerman, research associate at the Institute of Gerontology in Ann Arbor, said hearing losses, including general hearing and high-frequency sounds, begin around the age of 45. Vision, she said, begins deteriorating at about age 20.

The high-frequency loss can be accommodated to some extent, Haberkorn said, by the speaker lowering his or her voice, and avoiding "high" sounds such as "ch's," "f's" and "sh's." A substitute set of words without such sounds can work better. Any yelling is apt to distort the speaker's face into a threatening appearance and create additional difficulty for lip-readers, she added.

Vision loss, Haberkorn said, occurs in a number of ways and, like hearing loss, is universal, gradual and organic.

Blurring becomes a problem. Visual accommodation for seeing things which are far and near slows up.

Pupil size becomes smaller, so that 80-year-olds generally need three times as much light as do teenagers, and glare becomes an added problem.

Depth perception loss can lead to falls or uneven or unexpected steps, and in traffic can cause rear-end collisions.

Color perception fades, so that an 80-year-old gardener is apt to favor more bright yellow and orange marigolds and fewer petunias in the garden. Yellows and reds are good directional sign colors for highways and nursing homes.

General perception also falters, so that near obstacles may not be seen in time, and identification and dosage labels on medication containers become unclear, Haberkorn said.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

'Dumb Broad' Has Answers

Dear Ann Landers: I am employed by a small contractor. In all my years of working I have never run across such rude, ignorant, and downright nasty men — our customers. I'm not into Women's Lib, but believe me, I can understand why some women are.

I received a call today from a customer (male) who, when I answered the phone, said, "Let me talk to a man."

I'm the only person in this office. The men who work here are laborers in the plant. I asked the "gentleman" what he wanted to know and said politely, "Perhaps I can help you." He replied, "I doubt very much if a dumb broad could answer my questions."

I kept my cool and replied, "Well, sir, this dumb broad would like to try." I answered all his questions and he was very apologetic when the conversation ended.

At least 20 times a day a man will call and say, "Let me talk to someone who knows something." They just don't believe a woman can have any brains in this business. Why? — Burned Up

Dear B.: Because they are ignorant and unsophisticated — conditioned by years of sexist nonsense. But cheer up, lovey, the game is changing.

Dad Is 'Sick'

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing for my mother. When I visited her last week she showed me a newspaper clipping my father had pasted on a piece of paper and left out for her to see. It said wives of government pensioners who killed their husbands couldn't collect any benefits.

Mom then told me that father has been accusing her of trying to poison him for the last 30 years. Whenever he gets a fever blister or a stomach ache, he's sure a plot is at work.

My father is in debt up to his neck. He doesn't have a savings account so there is no possibility of an inheritance. In spite of his peculiarities Mom would be lost without him. Except for this quirk, he's a very sweet man.

What can be done about this, Ann? — Their Daughter

Dear Daughter: Your father's "quirk" is a classic symptom of mental illness. If you could persuade that "sweet man" to get some counseling it might help. If he refuses to go, your mother should go — for HER sake. She needs some understanding of his illness in order to deal with it realistically.

home.

I find it astonishing that this foul-mouthed daughter continues to embarrass everyone within ear-shot. Stranger still, her mother never bats an eye. It's as if she doesn't hear a thing. Can you explain it? — My Lobes Are Burning

Dear Lobes: The daughter is letting the world know (in an immature and disgusting manner) that she is not under her mother's thumb. People who use four-letter words in the presence of those who find such language offensive are trying to prove something.

Mother probably "plays deaf" because she doesn't want a confrontation — or she's already had one and lost.

Got those wedding bell blues over costs of guest list... what to wear... and other details? Ann Landers's complete new "The Bride's Guide" will help. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (13 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

ANN LANDERS

Where's Everybody?

The quickest way I know to be by myself is to walk out of a beauty shop.

Here I am — my hair a halo of sprayed confection... perfectly coiffed and immune to the wind. At the peak of my wonderfulness, the streets look like the quiet before an ambush. There are no signs or sounds or human activity... all forms of transportation have ceased. The wind rustles through the emptiness that goes with being alone.

Let me step outside of the house with curlers and it's like an episode out of "This Is Your Life."

Old girlfriends of my husband's appear like an apparition and say, "So you're Erma." New neighbors introduce themselves and make a quick exit saying, "We'll call you. We're not in the book." My husband appears during his working hours with a camera and the kids to take the picture for our Christmas card. A boy who was quite serious about me in high school recognizes me and looks relieved when I tell him I found someone else. The minister drops by to bless the house — and everything in it. My son's teacher appears to talk with me about his grubby appearance, and then thinks better of it. The Avon Lady makes an appointment — for an estimate. For the last 30 years or so, I have been searching for that magic moment when you can out your hair up without fear of being discovered. There is no such time.

I remember the first time my husband came home and saw me frosting my hair. I was standing over the stove wearing a bathing cap with strands of hair pulled through that had been stripped white and were standing straight out from my head.

He steadied himself against the door. "Don't tell me! You've just heard we're being audited."

"Don't be cute," I said. "I'm frosting my hair."

"Well, stop it. You're scaring the children half to death."

I tried putting my hair up at night only to discover that being a sex symbol will never replace sleep.

For awhile, I attempted to cover it when I went out of doors, which is like trying to slipcover the Eiffel Tower.

After awhile I resorted to spot curling — putting up only the parts of my hair that I slept on. With one fuzzy side corkscrewed to the side of my head, and the other hanging loosely, I looked like I had been built from spare parts. As I was drying my hair with the sweeper attachment the other night before dinner, my neighbor said, "Did you ever hear the joke about the bride who appeared at her own wedding with her hair in brush rollers under her veil? When someone asked why her hair was up she said, 'Ed and I might go someplace later on.'"

I don't get it.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there any cure for a skin ulcer, which is the result of poor circulation. The ulcer is on the top of my husband's foot at the ankle area. He is a victim of strokes.

DEAR READER — What needs to be done depends entirely on what is causing the ulcer. I suspect from its location that it is caused by varicose veins, not from inadequate blood flow through the arteries to the foot. If it is arterial disease the bottom of the foot or the toes are more often affected first.

Varicose ulcers of the ankle area are a complication of varicose veins. The best approach is to decrease the pooling of blood in the lower part of the foot by using support stockings or elastic bandages. Another solution is to get the foot up above the heart level so that the veins drain down hill toward the heart. If a person can stay in bed enough that will sometimes help heal such an ulcer. The problem is that the bed rest can be harmful too.

A good compromise is to wrap the foot or put an effective support hose before getting out of bed and then when sitting up keep the foot elevated as much as possible.

To give you more information about the treatment of varicose ulcers and the role of surgery in varicose veins I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What exactly is cancer? What actually causes it?

DEAR READER — Our cells are capable of reproducing themselves. Your skin is a good example. The skin cells constantly produce new cells. The older cells migrate to the surface and are flaked off. The repiles shed the old skin.

A cancer is nothing more than the normal cell growth gone wild. Let's say it is a cancer of the liver. The liver cells involved become abnormal in that they rapidly reproduce and the new cells are different from the original cell structure of liver cells. Usually the greater the difference is the more malignant the cancer will be.

This cancer would be a primary cancer of the liver. If some of the abnormal cells are carried by the blood or lymph to distant parts of the body they can start another area of cancer growth there. The cells in this new area will be similar or even identical to the cancer cells in the liver. This is a metastasis or spread of cancer. When a pathologist looks at the cancer tissue, regardless of where the tissue comes from he can usually tell where the original or primary cancer started.

We know there are many different things that can cause normal cells to become abnormal and start the wild growth pattern. Tars as found in cigarette smoke is one example. Radiation is another example. At least in some animal experiments virus infections can be a factor. Apparently anything that upsets the cell's normal reproduction cycle is capable of triggering cancer growth. That is why cancer may be several different diseases and may be caused by many factors.

The trump lead made it impossible for South to ruff two hearts in dummy. Every card was wrong in the side suits, yet South found a play for his contract in spite of the bludgeonings of chance.

He won the lead in dummy, cashed the ace and king of hearts, ruffed a heart, drew trumps, led his last heart to catch East in an end play at trick seven.

East had done his best to avoid this by throwing the eight of clubs on the third trump lead so as to keep that fifth heart in his hand, but this did him no good at all. When East led that fifth heart, South just chucked his singleton club.

Now if East led a diamond, South would lose just one diamond trick. If he led a club it would set up dummy's king and again South would lose just one diamond trick. Either way, South was sure of 10 tricks.

Ferndale Physician Mute On Charges

FERNDALE, Mich. (AP) — A Ferndale physician stood mute Thursday when arraigned on 13 charges of receiving money from Michigan Blue Cross under false pretenses.

Dr. Paul L. Gradolph, 62, who operates the Ferndale Clinic, was accused of taking more than $1,700 for services never performed.

District Court Judge Montague R. Hunt released Gradolph on $15,000 personal bond and scheduled preliminary examination for June 30.

Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson said the case was investigated by the county organized crime task force at the request of Michigan Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

Despite its name, the task force also handles white-collar crime for the prosecutor's office.

Patterson said investigators interviewed more than 40 of Gradolph's patients, many of them city employees, and found indications of fraud in 30 instances.

Eleven patients, he said, authorized investigators to look at their medical records, seized May 31 after the prosecutor's office obtained a search warrant.

A spokesman for the Blues, Dr. Lewis Hayes, said a computer analysis "identifies many unusual and unreasonable activities. Our routine audits and utilization review make it very difficult to beat the system."

Child Slingshots Ruled Jury Issue

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Supreme Court says a jury must decide if companies which sell toy slingshots to children are liable for injuries the toys cause.

Ruling 3-2 Thursday, the high court reversed a Court of Appeals decision that absolved three companies from any liability in the case of a 12-year-old boy who lost an eye while he and a friend were playing with slingshots.

It sent the case back to a lower court for a jury trial on whether the risk posed by the toys was so unreasonable that the companies should be found negligent in letting children buy them.

Royal Moring of Detroit lost the sight in one eye in 1967, when he was 12, after a pellet fired from his playmate's slingshot ricocheted off a tree and struck him.

The playmate, 11-year-old Joseph Alfano, had bought two 10-cent slingshots from the Campbell Discount Jewelry in Detroit. They were manufactured by Chemtoy Corp. and distributed by King Tobacco and Grocery Co.

All three companies, along with Alfano, were named as defendants in the suit. But the Alfano and Moring families worked out a financial settlement earlier.

At issue is whether slingshots, which the court said definitely pose a risk of harm, create such an unreasonable risk when sold to children that companies selling them are guilty of negligence. Also at issue is whether children should be able to buy slingshots as freely as they do bicycles or baseball bats, which also may cause injury.

SENATE SEEKS CONTROL OF BUREAUCRACY

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Senate has voted to challenge Gov. William Milliken and take firmer control over the state bureaucracy.

On a unanimous vote Thursday, the chamber approved a bill giving the legislature greater power over how state agencies and departments implement the laws it passes.

The measure now goes to the House, where overwhelming support is expected.

The same bill passed last year, but Milliken vetoed it, saying it upset the balance of powers between the executive and legislative branches. But the veto came after the end of the legislative session.

This time, lawmakers say there may be enough support to override a gubernatorial veto.

That is because members of both parties have expressed irritation with the way bureaucrats interpret their laws, and Republicans might not support a Milliken veto.

The bill alters the way the legislature reviews rules and regulations drafted by state agencies to implement laws. Such rules are important because they often determine the direction and effectiveness of new laws.

Currently, rules take effect automatically unless a little-known House-Senate rules committee rejects them and the legislature upholds that rejection. Thus almost all are approved.

Under the bill passed Thursday, rules would die unless approved by the committee or legislature. Lawmakers say that would force bureaucrats to justify their interpretation of laws in order to get their rules implemented.

Milliken says such a move would give the legislature too much power over how the executive branch does its job. And, he says, legislative delays would hinder state operations.

A special commission has recommended the current procedure be retained. But it suggested giving every lawmaker — not just the committee — power to introduce a resolution rejecting a rule.

The senate also unanimously passed a bill giving it power to rescind an emergency rule set down by an agency. Only gubernatorial approval is needed for such a rule now, and the legislature has no role in approving it and cannot rescind it.

U.S. Senate Expresses Foreign Policy Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Expressing its own views on foreign affairs, the Senate is unwilling to endorse President Carter's proposal to withdraw U.S. ground troops from South Korea.

Senators also don't want to impose preconditions on talks which could lead to normalized relations with Cuba, and are making it clear they are not prepared to accept any administration proposal for aid or reparations to Vietnam.

The Carter administration has not recommended any such assistance for the communist government in Vietnam.

The Senate made its views known on foreign affairs on Thursday during a 10-hour debate on a state Department authorization bill. The measure passed 64-21.

The Senate dropped from the bill a provision recommended by the Foreign Relations Committee endorsing the timing and wisdom of the proposed pullout of ground forces from Korea.

House Panel Approves Pretrial Bail Amendment

By DONALD WOUTAT
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — An expected collision between two law-and-order archrivals failed

$14 Million To Control Lampreys

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (AP) — Canada and the United States will spend about $14 million over a three-year period in a sea lamprey control program on the Great Lakes, an official of the Great Lakes Fisheries Commission said this week.

K.A. Lamsa, assistant executive director, told the commission's annual meeting that $4.4 million will be spent this year, $4.6 million in 1978 and $5.1 million in 1979.

The U.S. will undertake 69 percent of the cost of control and research. Administrative expenses will be shared equally by the two governments.

In 1978, Canada will treat nine tributaries on Lake Superior with lampricide. Canada also will treat eight on Lake Huron, nine on the Canadian side of Lake Ontario and four on the New York side, Lamsa said.

The commission also was told that two million adult anglers fish a total of 20 million day each year in Ontario.

Murray Johnson, Ontario regional director of fisheries and marine service, said Ontario is Canada's top commercial producer of fresh-water fish.

to materialize as a House committee approved a state constitutional amendment sharply restricting the right to pretrial bail.

If approved by the House and Senate, the proposal would go on the 1978 general election ballot. Sponsored by House Judiciary Chairman Paul Rosenbaum, it prohibits bail for repeat violent criminals.

The panel okayed the measure 11-2 Thursday after days of political sniping. Politics took a back seat despite the appearance of Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson, a Republican and political rival of Rosenbaum.

They said, "Hello, Brooks," and "Hello, Paul," and along with other committee members stuck largely to the issues. At terward, both men were "commended" by members for their straightforward behavior. Though critics warned of U.S. constitutional bans on "excessive" bail and asserted that crime statistics are being twisted to alarm the public, there was bipartisan backing for the measure.

The action came at a special meeting set up by Rosenbaum after last week's session turned into a flap over which political party deserves credit for anti-crime legislation.

Neither Republican Gov. William Milliken nor state GOP Chairman William McLaughlin accepted Rosenbaum's pointed invitations to testify at Thursday's meeting. Patterson, a possible Rosenbaum opponent for attorney general in coming years, showed up on the invitation of another Republican committee member.

Patterson tried some one-upmanship by saying Rosenbaum's measure isn't tough enough. But he strongly backed the idea of denying bail to violent criminals.

Rosenbaum told the prosecutor that he'd like it tougher, too, but said political facts of life dictate a compromise to get it past possible legislative opponents. The Senate blocked a similar House-passed measure last year.

As interpreted by Rosenbaum, the amendment would:

—Deny pretrial bail for those convicted of two previous violent felonies and charged with a third, and for those accused of committing a violent felony while out on pretrial bail on another violent felony charge.

—Deny pretrial bail, unless a judge finds clear evidence the defendant is unlikely to flee or pose a danger, for anyone charged with a violent crime — whether or not he has a criminal record.

There was disagreement between Rosenbaum and two committee aides over the scope of the amendment and in what cases judges would have some discretion in setting bail.

Rosenbaum said if there is confusion in the House or Senate, the measure can be rewritten. His intent, he said, is to flatly deny any chance of bail for repeat violent criminals.

Currently, bail can only be denied for those charged with murder or treason.

As written, the amendment guarantees a trial within 90 days for anyone denied bail.

Columnist Says Fidel Castro Planned To Blast Nixon Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro developed a secret plan in 1969 to have underwater raiders blow up then-President Richard Nixon's winter home at Key Biscayne, Fla., columnist Jack Anderson reported today.

Anderson said the raid was a contingency plan and added there was no known attempt to carry it out. He also said he didn't know whether the plans included an attempt on Nixon's life.

But he said a Cuban official at the United Nations was expelled from the United States in connection with the plan.

Anderson said the diplomat, Lazara Eddy Espinosa Bonet, tried to recruit a Cuban-American servant working inside Nixon's Key Biscayne compound to provide blueprints of security arrangements. The servant, who was told that harm would come to him and to relatives in Cuba if he did not agree to help in the plan, instead told U.S. officials about it, Anderson said.

The account said the blueprints were to be used to guide attacking frogmen in an attack on the Nixon compound.

Fish Dealers Told To Obey Law

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — About 120 fish dealers have been warned by the state not to buy or sell lake trout caught by unlicensed fishermen, especially Indians.

The Department of Natural Resources, apparently bowing to public pressure, has told wholesalers in a letter that they could be subject to criminal charges or license revocation if they deal with the Indians.

Any such trout could be seized under a 1929 law, the letter said. It was sent Wednesday by DNR law enforcement chief George Dahl and made public Thursday.

Tension has been rising lately over the Indians' continued fishing of lake trout, prized by sports fishermen. The Indians cite several 19th century treaties that they say allow them to ignore DNR rules and fish without licenses.

But sports fishermen say the Indians are ruining trout fishing. Officials say harm is also done by Indians who catch trout while trying to catch whitefish in illegal large-mesh gill nets.

Dahl's letter says "alleged" Indian beneficiaries of the old treaties can catch and sell lake trout, at least until pending court suits clarify the situation.

"But this alleged treaty-secured right does not extend to a second party," Dahl said, implying that although Indians could sell their fish, dealers could not buy them.

U.S. Steel Fine Runs In Millions

CHICAGO (AP) — Facing the threat of even stiffer penalties, U.S. Steel Corp. has agreed to pay a $3.25 million fine for failing to install water pollution control equipment at its Gary, Ind., Works, the federal Environmental Protection Agency said.

The agency said the fine was the largest settlement ever in a pollution case.

"The days are gone when you could dip your hand in the Grand Calumet River and have it coated with oil," George Alexander, EPA regional administrator, said at a news conference on Thursday.

EPA spokesman Frank Corrado said the agreement came on the heels of a recent defeat for giant steel firm in a pollution battle in federal court. Corrado said the firm evidently realized it could only expect steeper fines in the future.

Crosstown Challenge Cup

NEW YORK (AP) — "To get across town in Manhattan, you have to have been born there," goes an often-used description of New York's east-west traffic congestion. The Madison Avenue Sports Car Driving and Chowder Society set out on Tuesday to find the quickest way to cross the island and 16 spirited contestants, using everything from a Ferrari sports car to a skateboard, raced from United Nations Plaza to Sardi's restaurant. A gasoline-powered moped, driven by former national sports car racing champion Bruce MacInnes, was the first to reach the West 4th Street restaurant, after racing a 2.4-mile course in just over eight minutes. "It was the real thing," said MacInnes, who called the race "tough." He added that he encountered no problems "until the guy on the electric moped passed me. Then I had to go for it." The race started with an assortment of mopeds, antique and modern cars, a rusty bicycle and a late-entry horse-drawn carriage lined up for the challenge. Stewart Guthrie, brother of race car driver Janet Guthrie, said he entered the race as a jogger for fun and "to promote the cause of pedestrianism in the city." The Ferrari came in last.

House May Give Uranium Probe To Justice Dept.

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department may be asked to investigate whether Gulf Oil Corp. violated U.S. antitrust laws by joining an international uranium price-fixing cartel, says the chairman of a House investigations unit.

It's "quite possible" that the committee will decide to turn its evidence over to government prosecutors, despite Gulf's contention that it did nothing wrong, said Rep. John Moss, D-Calif.

The commerce investigations subcommittee, headed by Moss, continues hearings on the cartel today with testimony from former and present Gulf officials who attended meetings of the cartel around the world.

Gulf admits participating in the cartel through its Canadian uranium-producing subsidiary, but says it was compelled by the Canadian government to join the organization.

It contends that one of the witnesses scheduled to testify today, L.T. Gregg, a former official of Gulf Minerals Canada Ltd., participated in cartel activities at the specific request of the Canadian government. But subcommittee sources say the panel has evidence that the letter from the Canadian government to Gulf requesting Gregg's participation was drafted, at least in part, by Gregg himself.

Gregg will confirm the claim in today's testimony, the sources said.

According to confidential Gulf and Canadian government documents released by the panel on Thursday, the cartel of foreign governments and uranium producers carved up the free world uranium market, establishing quotas and setting prices.

Michigan No. 2 In Hunting, Fishing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan ranked second in the country in the number of both hunting and fishing licenses sold as a record number of Americans purchased licenses last year, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has reported.

Director Lynn A. Greenwalt said 81 million persons spent nearly $318 million on state hunting and fishing licenses in 1976. The totals represent an increase of $23 million and 500,000 persons over 1975 and they are considered conservative totals because states don't require licenses for persons under 16, senior citizens or for ocean fishing.

Greenwalt said California led the nation in fishing license sales with 5.8 million licenses, tags, permits and stamps sold. The closest runner-up was Michigan, with 1.8 million.

In hunting, Pennsylvania led the field with 1.9 million licenses, tags, permits and stamps sold. Michigan was second, followed by New York and Wisconsin.

Pentagon Mum On Fate Of Returning General

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials refuse to say what consequences are in store for an American three-star general being called on the carpet for his unauthorized warning that the United States might wind up in the middle of a Soviet-Chinese war.

Lt. Gen. Donn Starry is the second Army general to face discipline for controversial public statements within a month.

Starry, a 52-year-old West Point graduate nominated for a fourth star, was to meet in private at the Pentagon today with Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Bernard Rogers.

The general, who voiced his warning in a speech to a class of American high school graduates in Germany, had not complied with the required policy of submitting remarks to the Pentagon in advance for review. "It should have been (cleared)," Pentagon spokesman Thomas Ross said Thursday.

By mid-afternoon, the Pentagon had sent a message worldwide to all commands reminding members of the military of defense policy that they not speak out of line or contradict administration policy.

Starry seemed in good spirits Thursday as he prepared to leave Germany after 16 months as commander of the Army's 3d Corps. He smiled and shook hands at a farewell reception attended by about 200 American and German guests at the headquarters officers' club.

"The general prefers not to say anything about his speech of last Friday at this time," a spokesman cautioned a reporter in the farewell reception line.

Starry already had been scheduled to return to the United States to take a vacation before reporting to his next assignment as head of the Army Training and Doctrine Command at Ft. Monmouth, Va. After the controversy arose over his speech, he was told to postpone the leave and report to Army superiors.

In his speech to the graduates, Starry said the Soviet Union and China probably will fight a major war in the students' lifetime. He said it was likely the United States would become in-involved "once it became apparent that one of the other of the antagonists was about to win and gain absolute control over the bulk of the Eurasian land mass."

The Pentagon said the message sent to commands Thursday was triggered by the flap over Army Maj. Gen. John Singlaub's warning that removal of U.S. troops from Korea would lead to a new war there. Singlaub's comments were seen as criticism of President Carter's plans to pull out troops, and the general was ordered back to the United States and removed as the Army's staff chief in Korea May 21.

The all-commands message quoted extensively from a speech in which Army Secretary

LT. GEN. STARRY
He's No. 2

Alexander told West Point graduates that members of the military are under "recently heightened public scrutiny."

Alexander said servicemen are free to voice their own opinions within the military but when talking in public are expected to voice established policy when it is set.

Alaskan Pipeline Road Called Threat To Arctic

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer
PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska
(AP) — Thanks to the trans-Alaska pipeline, the United States has a road to the top of the world. Now the question is what to do with it.

Environmentalists say it presents a far greater threat to the Arctic than the pipeline and its construction ever did. For once, oil men agree.

But there is pressure to open the road for tourism. And the trucking industry opposes the state's plan to impose a toll on industrial vehicles.

Alaska Pipeline Service Co., which built the 367-mile-long road from the Yukon River to Prudhoe Bay on the Arctic Ocean, has called off its plans to turn the road over to the state.

Alaska president Dr. W.J. Darch says the consortium feels turning the road over to the state this year "would be a bit unfair. We've got to give them lead time."

Robert LeResche, state natural resources commissioner, concedes: "We aren't really anxious to have it now." He and Gov. Jay Hammond want to study what impact there will be if they open up a pristine area to potential hordes of tourists.

LeResche says "clearly the largest long-term impact of the pipeline is the haul road." Jim Kowalsky, Alaska field representative for Friends of the Earth, agreed.

Darch also is concerned about security problems along the pipeline that could result from opening the road to the public.

The first oil is to be pumped into this end of the pipe on Monday. It won't reach the southern end, at Valdez, for a month or more.

The road, crossing the first bridge ever built over the Yukon River, opens up an area almost as large as the state of Texas.

Alaska has permitted a few reporters to drive the road, and it's quite an experience. Imagine barreling down a fairly smooth dirt road to see a grizzly bear in the right lane — on your side — and a truck coming in the left lane. Wolves walk out onto the road looking for handouts.

The road crosses the Arctic Circle and the majestic Brooks Range, whose peaks reach 8,000 feet. The scenery isn't necessarily more spectacular than in some national parks in the lower 48, but there's a feeling about where you are.

The pipeline is visible in some areas along the road, although Alaska has spent millions to hide it.

Once you cross the Brooks Range, the scenery changes abruptly. There are few trees even at lower elevations; just miles and miles of tundra. That monolith is largely unrelieved even when you reach the Arctic Ocean here, since it's frozen much of the year.

Once here there's nowhere to go. Alaska doesn't permit unescorted visits of the Prudhoe oil fields. And tours must be prearranged.

Wiseman — population around 12 — is about the closest thing to a town along the road. June Reakoff, whose husband Rick is a hunting guide, says she's always feared the road more than the pipeline.

Before the pipeline, you walked into Wiseman or flew. Now the road is within a mile of town. Up the hill a few miles in Linda Creek, population 1, gold miner Earl Boese, in his 60s, announces to anyone who stops his opposition to closing the road or charging a toll.

"The road should be open," Boese said. "Too many things are closed already by the Nazi bureaucrats." He hasn't been happy with the government ever since aerial wolf hunting was halted.

The natives of northern Alaska have nearly unanimously opposed opening the road because they feared an intrusion of tourists and hunters could endanger their subsistence hunting of caribou and other wildlife.

The state also objects to the high cost of maintaining the road — estimated at $8.5 million annually after an initial expense of $14 million for equipment and facilities. That doesn't include the cost of stationing state troopers along the line.

Alaska has spent around $18 million annually for maintenance, suggesting to some that the state wouldn't maintain the standards set by the oil companies. And one of the first things you notice when you cross the Yukon and reach the state-maintained Elliott Highway is the rapid deterioration in the road surface.

The state also has noted the total lack of private facilities for food, gas or lodging along the road. Darch says Alaska isn't going to be serving as "a motel and gas station" much longer.

"We've lived without tourist facilities (north of the Yukon) for two million years and I suspect we can get along for another one or two years without them," says Atty. Gen. Avram Gross.

Passengers Set Ross Field Record

The Twin Cities airport band yesterday learned North Central Airlines served a record number of passengers at Ross field during May and also approved a proposed $34,559 budget for the 1977-1978 fiscal year, up 12 per cent from last year.

North Central recorded an all-time high of 6,026 arrivals and departures during May, according to Lee Schiek, airport manager. A total of 3,033 passengers flew into Ross field during May, Schiek said, while 2,983 passengers boarded North Central planes to depart from Ross field.

Schiek told board members the passenger increase resulted from recent changes in North Central's flight schedules. He said an afternoon flight which previously flew from Chicago to Benton Harbor to Grand Rapids and back to Chicago now only travels from Chicago to Benton Harbor and back to Chicago. The new flight allows more passenger seats for Ross field passengers, he said.

The board also re-elected officers for the 1977-1978 fiscal year and named Edward Tisornia, a board member, to a newly-created position of second vice chairman. Re-elected were John Banyon, chairman; Donald Ross, vice chairman; Joe Carver, treasurer, and Donald Ranum, secretary.

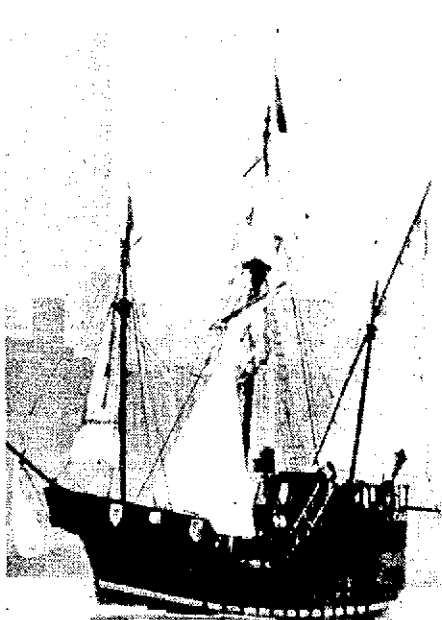

The 12 per cent increase in the 1977-1978 proposed budget, up $4,415 from this fiscal year's budget, will be matched by a 12 per cent increase in revenues, according to Schiek.

Schiek said two of the major contributions to the 12 per cent increase are a 10 per cent increase in the wholesale cost of fuel and a 5 to 6 per cent cost of living increase for Ross field's staff of 10 employees.

The projected increase in revenues come from increases in renegotiated contracts with car leasing concessions at the airport and with North Central Airlines, Schiek said.

In other business, the board approved a $3,900 contract with the Benton Harbor certified public accounting firm of Herkner, Smith, Miskill and Merrifield to conduct the annual audit of the airport's finances.

Berrien Hearings Asked On Charges Of Robbery

Two men demanded Berrien District court preliminary hearings Thursday on charges of armed robbery.

Donald C. Stamps, 30, of Riverside, and Garland E. Cook, Jr., 20, of 2205 Berg avenue, Benton township, were jailed under bonds of $5,000.

They are accused of robbing Dennis Perkins, 20, of San Jose, Calif., Wednesday night. Perkins said he was robbed of $800 by two men armed with a pistol and a shotgun. He said he was robbed in Riverside.

Also in court James W. Jamieson, 17, of New Rochelle, N.Y., demanded examination on a charge of breaking and entering a dwelling in Chikaming township June 13. He did not post bond of $3,500.

Bound over to Circuit court after waiving preliminary hearings in District court were:

Kenneth Tyson, 17, of 609 Colfax avenue, Benton Harbor, charged with unarmed robbery in connection with an alleged purse snatch from Verna Warren in Benton Harbor May 31. He remained jailed in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Robert Sewell, 17, of 680 McCord, Benton Harbor, charged with breaking into a Benton Harbor house June 4. He was released on $2,500 personal recognizance bond.

Sentenced yesterday were:

John J. Fitzner IV, 21, of 911 Lions Park drive, St. Joseph, fine and costs of $50 or 10 days in jail for use of marijuana in St. Joseph Wednesday. Another person was sentenced Wednesday while three others arrested at the same time were released because the prosecutor's office didn't authorize charges, according to St. Joseph police.

Released from custody were Karl W. Wahl, 20, Buckhorn trailer park, US-33, Berrien Springs; Clay A. Lander, 19, 610 Jones street, St. Joseph; and Cherie M. Houck, 18, Route 1, Berrien Springs.

Others sentenced included: Rose Marie Sheets, 21, of 1385 Ryeunson road, Buchanan, $80 or 15 days in jail for creating a disturbance in Niles township June 15.

Impaired driving — Steven W. Southard, 21, of Michigan City, Ind.; Jessie C. Howell, 28, of Benton Harbor; and Patricia A. Hart, 19, of St. Joseph avenue, Stevensville, each $102.

Fishermen To Protest Ban

COOS BAY, Ore. (AP) — About 100 commercial fishing boats headed up the Oregon coast Thursday night, planning to drop their lines in closed waters to protest a fishing ban along most of the Pacific Northwest coast, a spokesman for the fishermen said.

The Pacific Fisheries Management Council closed an area from Tillamook Head, in northern Oregon, to the Canadian border for two weeks to protect the annual chinook salmon run.

Judge To Give Verdict Monday

PAW PAW — Judge Meyer Warshawsky said he would deliver his verdict Monday morning in the case of a 43-year-old Scottsdale, Ariz., man charged with eight counts of violating the state securities law.

Charles Eugene Cook is accused of defrauding a South Haven woman, Mrs. Winifred LaFever, of some $4,300 in stock and coin transactions during 1974, in the case.

Cook also faces a $10 million civil suit filed in Grand Rapids federal district court by 77 former clients who claim he sold them securities in violation of federal law.

During closing arguments Thursday, Atty. Richard L. Basinger maintained Cook had not willfully violated any laws. In the case of Mrs. LaFever, he said Cook was never required to tell her that she might have obtained better prices on the stock and coin deals through another agent.

During Van Buren circuit court trial, which began May 31, the prosecution called six witnesses and the defense five, some of whom were experts in the field of securities transactions.

Robbery Suspects In Court

Two people accused of stealing some $1,500 at knife-point from a migrant worker living in a cabin in Bainbridge township June 4 demanded preliminary examinations yesterday in Berrien District court on armed robbery charges.

Jailed in lieu of $50,000 bonds were Dan Cull (also known as David Aikens and Daniel Atkinson), 57, and Hazel Aikens (also known as Merriman and Murphy), 41. Court records listed addresses in Birmingham, Ala., and Robinson, Ill., for Cull. No address was listed for Hazel Aikens.

William Benson, 50, a Florida man living in Bainbridge township, told police a man and two women robbed him at his cabin.

Niles Man Sentenced To Jail

A Niles man was given a nine-month jail sentence yesterday by Berrien Circuit Judge Julian E. Hughes for violating his probation.

Rick Orebia, 23, whose address is listed as the Four Flags hotel, left the state without his probation officer's permission and he was terminated from a vocational program that the court had ordered him to complete.

He had earlier been placed on probation as part of a sentence for writing a no account check in Niles Oct. 8, 1976. In sentencing Orebia, Hughes gave him credit for 215 days already served in jail, reducing his sentence to 55 days in jail for the probation violation.

Woman Waives Hearing

Nancy Brantley, 48, of 138 Catalpa avenue, Benton Harbor, was bound over to Circuit court Thursday on a charge of welfare fraud over $500. She waived preliminary examination on the charge in Berrien District court.

She is accused of receiving $1,370 in ADC benefits that she was not entitled to by holding a job without telling the county department of social services. Personal recognizance bond was continued yesterday.

No Added Patrols Seen After Belle Isle Battle

DETROIT (AP) — Police say they have no plans to increase patrols on Belle Isle after celebrating high school students turned the island park into a racial battleground.

But officers said they would closely monitor youth activity following the outbreak of violence early Thursday that left six persons injured.

Police reported at least three separate clashes on different parts of the island in the Detroit River. Police said one white youth was run over by a car, another was shot and four blacks were dragged from their car and beaten by a large group of whites.

The trouble began when a crowd of about 300 white students, who police said had been drinking beer and wine to celebrate the end of the school year, attacked a black couple in their car.

One of the car's frightened occupants pulled a gun and fired a single shot, striking 16-year-old Ronald Scott in the right arm. Police said the car then sped off, knocking another youth to the ground, injuring him slightly.

Police later arrested the couple in the car.

A short time later another car carrying six black youths reportedly was attacked by another crowd of white students, police said.

The driver told police he put the car into reverse and drove through the crowd. Edward Nagel, 21, of Harper Woods, suffered a fractured skull when struck by the fleeing car and was in satisfactory condition at Detroit General Hospital following surgery.

Later still, the same group reportedly jumped on a car driven by 21-year-old Tommy Jones.

Jones told police he tried to drive through the mob but a group of 20 to 30 white youths opened the car doors and dragged him, his brother and their girlfriends out and beat them with bottles, baseball bats and sledge hammers.

The crowd dispersed when police arrived. Jones and his passengers were reported in stable condition at Detroit General with cuts and bruises.

One high-ranking official admitted police were caught unprepared and that officers at the scene failed to realize the gravity of the situation and call for help.

Chiropractor Guilty Of Medicaid Fraud

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Trenton chiropractor has pleaded guilty to Medicaid fraud charges, the attorney general's office said Thursday.

It is the first Medicaid fraud conviction in a recent crackdown by the attorney general's office.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said chiropractor John Florek pleaded guilty before a Wayne County Circuit Court judge, and faces up to five years in prison.

Florek was arrested April 6 and charged with defrauding the Medicaid system of $2,964.

Three counts of the eight-count indictment were dropped upon the guilty plea, and Florek will pay the money back, Kelley said.

So far, five persons have been arrested in the Medicaid fraud investigation which began last November.

NATIONALApple Growers Approve Hike In Promotion Tax

Michigan apple growers voted to raise the apple promotion tax for the Michigan Apple Committee (MAC) by 4 cents per hundredweight on fresh and processed apples, and 2 cents per hundredweight on juice, cider and vinegar apples.

The rate increase will become effective July 1. The new per hundredweight tax will be 12 cents on fresh, 10 cents for process, and 4 cents for juice, cider and vinegar apples.

The proposal received a 68 per cent approval with 260 "yes" votes over 124 "no" votes. The votes in favor of the increased tax represented 78 per cent of the tonnage voting. A two-thirds vote was necessary for approval. The 384 ballots returned represented around 16 per cent of the 2,000 ballots mailed to growers by the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

A spokesman for the MAC said that the increases will be used to offset rising advertising costs and to improve media promotions. Last year's small apple crop left MAC funds about $100,000 below normal years. The rate increase is the first since 1968.

Youth Crews
And Leaders Available

Young people looking for work and farmers looking for workers may be able to get together through the summer youth farm employment program run by the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Wayne Ransbottom, program administrator, said that work crews and crew leaders will be provided in any area farmer who can use the labor.

"Our biggest function is to screen the workers before we send them out," Ransbottom said. "We can help by weeding out the people that aren't really serious about working. We want to place only those people who want to work."

Ransbottom said that the program has already received requests for work crews to be available for apples in September. After screening applicants, Ransbottom said he expects an available work force of about 100 people for farm work.

Young people between the ages of 14 and 21 interested in the program can register at the summer youth employment office at 345 12th St., Benton Harbor. Farmers seeking labor can contact the office Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., by phoning 925-7872. The service and the crew leaders are CETA funded and provided at no charge to the grower. The program will run until the first of October.

The program can also provide individual, summer-long workers. Those interested in obtaining individual laborers should call 925-7887. Minimum wage is required for all workers over 18, and some transportation arrangements may be necessary.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently reported that the majority of people hired to work on U.S. farms and ranches are under 25 years old, and over a million of them are students.

Fair Season Runs
Through September

Michigan's fair season starts earlier than usual this year and continues until the first of October, according to the Michigan Department of Agriculture. June 22 is the opening date, with 86 county fairs, 441 and agricultural fairs and two state fairs scheduled from then until October.

Michigan's two state fairs are the Upper Peninsula State Fair at Escanaba August 16-21, and the Michigan State Fair at Detroit August 26-September 5.

Other fair dates and locations, as compiled by MDA's county fair section, are: June 22-26, Ithaca; June 29-July 4, Lake Odessa; July 5-9, Marion; July 5-10, Sparta; July 10-16, Vassar; July 11-16, Big Rapids; July 17-21, Hastings and Marne; July 18-21, Crosswile, Foxfieldville and Greenville; July 23-30, Hartford; July 24-30, Charlotte; July 25-30, Gladwin and Holland; July 26-30, Ravenna; July 27-30, Hale; July 30-31, Stephenson; July 31-August 6, Harrison.

August 1-6, Bay City, Alma, Mason, Davisburg, Caro and Saline; August 5-6, Petoskey; August 5-14, Ionia; August 7-13, Paul Ave, Jackson, Gaylord and Corunna; August 8-13, Coldwater, Cassopolis, Monroe, Litchfield and Sandusky; August 9-11, Falmouth; August 9-13, Standish, Ewart and POPULAR DISEASE: Widely used for landscaping and as wind breaks, poplar tree is also extremely susceptible to disease. Jim Neibauer, county extension agent, says that development of dothichiza canker is a common occurrence causing trees to die. There is no effective control for the disease, and pruning may actually spread it. Lombardy poplar is most susceptible variety. Neibauer suggests interplanting a slower growth tree to replace the rapid growing poplar once it is affected. Pictured are Simon poplars used as wind breaks on DeGrool nurseries in Coloma. State Wineries Must Compete

Drop Import Wine Tax?

Ken Nye, new staff member of Michigan Farm Bureau Market Development division, says that removing the import tax on out-of-state wines would improve the Michigan wine industry.

"The tax may seem like a benefit to wineries in Michigan, but it may also detract from the competition that improves promotion and sales," Nye said. "Michigan wineries have got to start moving on new marketing developments and promoting their own product. We can't compete with California wines nationally, but we certainly can in Michigan."

Nye, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Nye of Stevensville, is completing a preliminary report on the Michigan grape and wine industry to be made available to area growers and processors. Nye feels that changes in industry legislation can improve market conditions in the state.

Nye said that he would also like to see a change in the $1,000 licensing fee for wineries in Michigan. Nye feels that a fee based on a per-gallon scale would benefit small wineries without amounting to a drastic cut in overall fees collected by the state.

"Promotion is probably the most important aspect that needs attention from Michigan wineries," Nye added. "Consumers need to be made aware that Michigan produces good wine. A Michigan wine week would be one way of doing it. More information also needs to be made available to store owners."

Nye received his B.S. degree in horticulture marketing from Michigan State University. He spent the last two years with his brother as a partner in a fruit operation in Berrien county before joining Farm Bureau in April.

Crew Leader Permit Is No Escape For Growers

Growers considering registering as crew leaders in order to avoid conflict with new federal interpretations of the registration act should be aware of what they are getting themselves into, according to Dr. Allen Shapley, farm labor specialist at Michigan State University.

"Once you are a registered crew leader," Shapley explained, "there are a number of regulations regarding what you must do. Some of the rules may not apply to circumstances of farmers lending labor, but a number of them do."

Rules that would apply to farmers registering as crew leaders include: furnishing workers with a written statement giving an exact description of the work, work conditions, and wages to be paid; posting the terms and conditions at the place of employment "in a language in which the workers are fluent and written in a manner understandable by such workers"; posting housing terms; keeping "written documentation" that each worker is a United States citizen or a "person lawfully authorized to work in the United States." Shapley added that there are rules requiring special registration of vehicles used by crew leaders to transport workers.

Shapley said that even if a grower does not provide transportation for workers going from his farm to a neighbor's, the individual providing the transportation may have to apply for a crew leader employee card.

"I think this kind of shows how ridiculous the new interpretation (requiring registration of farmers who lend out labor) can be," Shapley said. "It's obvious that it was not the intent of Congress to regulate farmers when they passed this legislation."

Shapley pointed out that the preamble to the registration act states the act's purpose is to stop "irresponsible contractors...who exploit producers of agricultural products, migrant agricultural laborers, and the public generally..."

"The new interpretation goes way beyond the intent of the act and actually ends up hurting the people it was designed to benefit," Shapley added. "In reality it is creating obstructions to farmers and farm laborers, not removing them."

So far, no violations have been found involving the new interpretations, according to Dan Ochazak of the U.S. Department of Labor office in Grand Rapids. Labor investigators were in the area last week checking on registered crew leaders.

"Much of the labor in southwestern Michigan is still working on farms they are housed on," Ochazak said.

"The situation of farm laborers living on one farm and working on another will probably develop later in the season. I would expect more action on our part later in the year concerning new stipulations."

Dr. Shapley said that a number of farmers are unsure if they qualify as crew leaders because of the new interpretations.

"I'm sure it's just a matter of time before this catches up to somebody," said Shapley. "I've had a number of growers contacted one who would be considered crew leaders under the new view of the law. We are running into so many different circumstances that it is often hard to say just who is and who isn't affected by this."

Shapley encourages anyone who feels the new interpretations are wrong to contact their congressman and ask that the new interpretations be investigated. Ed Locke, aide to Congressman Dave Stockman, R-Mich., said that a number of growers from southwestern Michigan have already voiced complaints about the new stipulations.

Farm Costs
Up In 1976

Farmers spent 9 per cent more in 1976 than a year earlier to produce the nation's agricultural commodities, according to a report issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The total outlay by producers was $89.2 billion last year, up from the $81.8 billion estimated by the USDA's Statistical Reporting Service (SRS) for 1975. That averaged out to $32.16 per acre, compared to $29.172 in 1975.

The largest share of the total production expenditures was credited to feed purchases, 15.8 per cent amounting to $14.1 billion. Next highest cost was charged to rent, 9 per cent, which meant over $8.1 billion. Wages and contract labor advanced to 8.3 per cent at $7.2 billion.

The costs for fuels and energy to produce farm products which represented 5.5 per cent of expenditures in 1976, moved ahead of 5.9 per cent for 1976 accounting for $5.2 billion.

The SRS summary lists 16 separate categories of farm production expenditures. Of these, 7 took bigger portions of the total dollar outlay in 1976; 8 showed declines, and one was unchanged.

Cherry Meet

The Michigan Association of Cherry Producers (MACP) will hold its annual meeting at 10 a.m. June 28 at Gibbs Country House, east of Litchfield in US-31.

Robert Frohling, MACP official, said that a number of Michigan State University and industry representatives will be at the meeting to discuss various aspects of the Michigan cherry industry.

MORE GOATS

In stark contrast to the declining sheep population, the Texas inventory of goats and kids registered a 16% increase during 1976. The Crop Reporting Board estimates total goats and kids on hand as of January 1, 1977, at 1.3 million.

The average American consumes 125 pounds of sugar yearly, according to the Diet Workshop. This compares with 109 pounds of beef.

Four Facing Charges In Officer's Death

By LARRY McDERMOTT
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Local authorities planned to file murder charges today against three men and a woman arrested after a hostage-taking siege at a bank that left a policeman dead and two persons wounded. Lansing patrolman Mac J. Donnelly Jr., a 35-year-old father of five, was killed when he confronted one of the bank robbers trying to fire a shopping center with four hostages. Donnelly, a nine-year veteran, got off several shots wounding the suspect before he fell mortally wounded. Ingham County Prosecutor Peter Houk said all four were to be arraigned today on four counts each: first-degree murder, two counts of kidnapping and conspiracy to commit armed robbery. Houk identified them as David Bellah, about 29, Gregory Allen Lawrence, 19, and Melanie Rae Lawrence Godbey, 21, of Ocala, Fla.; and Robert Schraw, 20, of Kokomo, Ind. Police identified Ms. Godbey as Lawrence's sister. The four were booked by police Thursday night. Houk said all four were to be held without bail for arraignment and a preliminary examination was set for June 30. Donnelly was the first policeman ever slain in the line of duty in Lansing, the state's capital and part of a metropolitan area of nearly 400,000 people.

Berrien Teacher Agent Hearings Set In Detroit

Hearings are to be held in Detroit between June 23 and 27 on requests from teacher organizations in four Berrien county school districts to make a regional organization their contract bargaining agent. The four involved are Buchanan, River Valley, New Buffalo and Brandywine near Niles. According to an announcement, hearings for Buchanan and Brandywine are set for June 24 while the hearing for River Valley is to be held June 27. New Buffalo's hearing has been set for June 23, but school officials are attempting to determine if the hearing will be held since a new contract with the New Buffalo teachers has just been approved. The hearings have been called by the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC) and came because the school districts declined to permit the teacher organizations to hold elections on the change on their own. The teachers seek to name the 5-C Education Association their bargaining agent. One result of the move by teachers has been to put negotiations on new contracts in limbo until a decision on what group represents them is settled. Dr. Earl Hogan, Buchanan superintendent, said the Buchanan Education Association has just recently been notified that its request to open negotiations on a contract for the 1977-78 year could not be met because of the representation issue. Carl Anderson, president of the River Valley school board, and Edward Ossmann, Brandywine superintendent, said their positions were similar. In New Buffalo, Supt. Walter Schwarz said the question over representation was now muddled because the New Buffalo Education Association and the district worked out a new two-year contract covering 1977-78 and 1977-78. He said the school attorney was to be contacted to see if the hearing was necessary.

Couple Winner In Van Buren

(Continued From Page One) only 21 and over. The judge said the Supreme Court found the Oklahoma statute denied males equal protection under the law, and that he felt that a section of the Michigan marriage law presented much the same situation. Judge Willis' ruling will only affect Van Buren county. But he said he plans to ask Keith Robinson, the assistant county prosecutor who represented the state at the hearing, to appeal the ruling. The judge said he feels a higher court needs to rule to clarify the issue. Robinson had argued in a legal brief that if the section allowed 16 and 17-year-old girls to marry would be found unconstitutional, the net effect would be only to require all persons to be 18 to be married. He argued that for a judge to allow 16 and 17-year-old males to marry would amount to "judicial legislation."

Galien Twp. OKs Garage Business

GALLEN — The Galien township zoning board last night told a township man he would not be in violation of present zoning laws if he wants to sell carpet and linoleum samples out of his garage. Joe Payne of Buffalo road appeared before the board to ask if he would be in compliance with present laws if he opens his proposed business. In other areas, the zoning board tabled for further study a previous proposal that the township undertake the writing of an all-new township zoning ordinance. Berrien county planning commission officials have told the township that it would take a new zoning ordinance to plug loopholes in the present ordinance.

EIGHT KILLED

NEW LONDON, Minn. (AP) — Eight persons, including five children in one family, died in a head-on two-car crash near New London in central Minnesota early today.

House To Review Abortion Funding

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is preparing to reconsider the federal government's role in funding abortions after voting to prevent the use of tax money to finance cross-town busing of school children.

By a margin of 225-157, the House sought Thursday to prevent the use of federal funds to pay for busing in school districts that merge, pair or cluster their schools under desegregation orders from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Amendments on abortion, affirmative action and other sensitive issues were likely to come up today as the House resumed consideration of a $81.3 billion appropriation bill for the departments of Labor and HEW.

The busing amendment, proposed by Rep. Ronald Mottl, D-Ohio, strips HEW of the power to enforce the 1964 Civil Rights Act provision barring discrimination on the basis of race, religion, color or creed.

It prevents the use of funds to bus pupils to any school other than the one nearest their home.

Opponents of the amendment argued it would not affect court-ordered busing. They also said the subject was an inappropriate topic for debate during discussion of a funding bill.

The expected debate on abortion centers on whether federal funds should be used to pay for such operations. The bill calls for prohibiting the use of federal money for abortions except when a woman's life is in danger, a position opponents say denies poor women abortions.

Last year's bill contained similar language and is being appealed in court to test its constitutionality.

The affirmative action amendment would bar hiring or admissions quotas based on race or sex. Opponents claim it would undermine guarantees against discrimination contained in civil rights legislation.

In addition to the questions on social issues, the appropriations measure is controversial because of differences over money.

The House Democratic leadership has President Carter's support for the bill, despite Carter's opposition to two programs.

The President at one time had suggested he might veto the bill if it called for more spending than he favored.

But under a compromise arranged between the White House and the House leadership in recent days, Carter has agreed to drop his threat to veto the House bill if no costly amendments are added and if the House works toward phasing out programs he opposes.

The programs opposed by Carter call for aid to school districts in areas with large federal installations and for a national direct student loan program.

Including the programs in the bill raised the measure's cost to $740 million above Carter's request, but $10.8 billion below last year's appropriation.

No amendments adding to the cost of the appropriations bill were adopted Thursday. The House also rejected an attempt by Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., to cut the bill by $563 million.

The Senate must still write its own version of the appropriations measure. A Senate subcommittee has drafted a bill calling for $60.6 billion in expenditures.

Storm Crackles Through Area; Damage Minor

Lightning caused minor damage in the Twin Cities and farther inland last night as a thunderstorm cracked through Northern Berrien and Van Buren counties bringing welcome rain in some parts of the area, according to weather observers.

Jack Cooley, meteorologist in charge of the Grand Rapids National Weather Service station, said judging from its appearance on radar screens the storm was intense.

Benton township firemen responded to three fire calls prompted by lightning strikes, they reported. A North Shore resident reported a tree knocked down 6 zeystl wwarman, agricultural weather observer for the National Weather Service, said a moderate 21 inches of rain fell at his Watervliet farm from 11:30 to 11:40 last night. Plenty of lightning and thunder accompanied the storm, Warnman said, but no wind or hail.

Farther south, a Bainbridge township grower said the storm brought winds that uprooted a few young fruit trees, and small hail.

Cooley said the storm lessened in intensity as it moved east across Van Buren county, and state troopers from the Paw Paw post reported that only a light breeze carried the lightning and rain into their area.

None of the observers reported damaging hail.

Benton township firemen reported lightning struck near the Janice Stephens residence, 2265 Territorial road, at 11:39 p.m., sending an electrical surge through the house's wiring and causing an electric fan to smoke. They said damage was limited to the fan motor.

Firemen said they responded to the Hugh Puterbaugh residence, 1075 M-139, at 11:31 p.m. after a nearby bolt of lightning sent a charge through the house's electrical system, knocking a wall socket out of the wall.

Lightning set a tree ablaze in an open lot at 6253 East Empire avenue at 1:12 a.m. today, township firefighters reported.

Firemen who responded to the scene said the fire spread to an old farm dump before it was extinguished by farmers from the area.

Berrien sheriff's officers and Benton township police both reported antennas at their headquarters struck by lightning during the overnight storm. Communications at both departments were unaffected by the lightning bolts, which police said struck between 11 and 12 p.m. Thursday.

Eleven People Flee Motor Home Fire

BRIDGMAN — Eleven people, including eight children between the ages of six and 12, escaped unhurt from a fire yesterday that destroyed their motor home at Warren Dunes state park south of here.

State police at New Buffalo said the motor home, owned by Robert and Judith Galloway, South Bend, Ind., had just pulled into the park parking lot about 1:15 p.m. when the fire occurred.

Trooper Charles Bohn said Mrs. Galloway was driving. She and two other women and the children were inside. She told Bohn that she had just turned off the engine, then tried to restart it. She saw smoke coming from the engine area and ordered everyone out, Bohn said, it appeared there was a malfunction of the carburetor.

Firemen from the Lake township department were called to the scene. The 24-foot motor home was valued at $14,000.

Ever Dream Of Owning Your Own Town?

DESERTED MAIN STREET: Main street of Jones is deserted now as developers of "Jones Is Back" get ready to place what was to have been tourist attraction on auction block. Operators of center decided earlier this year not to reopen because of economics. (Dick Cooper photos)

Cass Tourist Attraction On Auction Block

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

JONES — Ever dreamed of being lord and master over a community — holding the fate of a small town in your own hands?

Well, you will get that chance later this month.

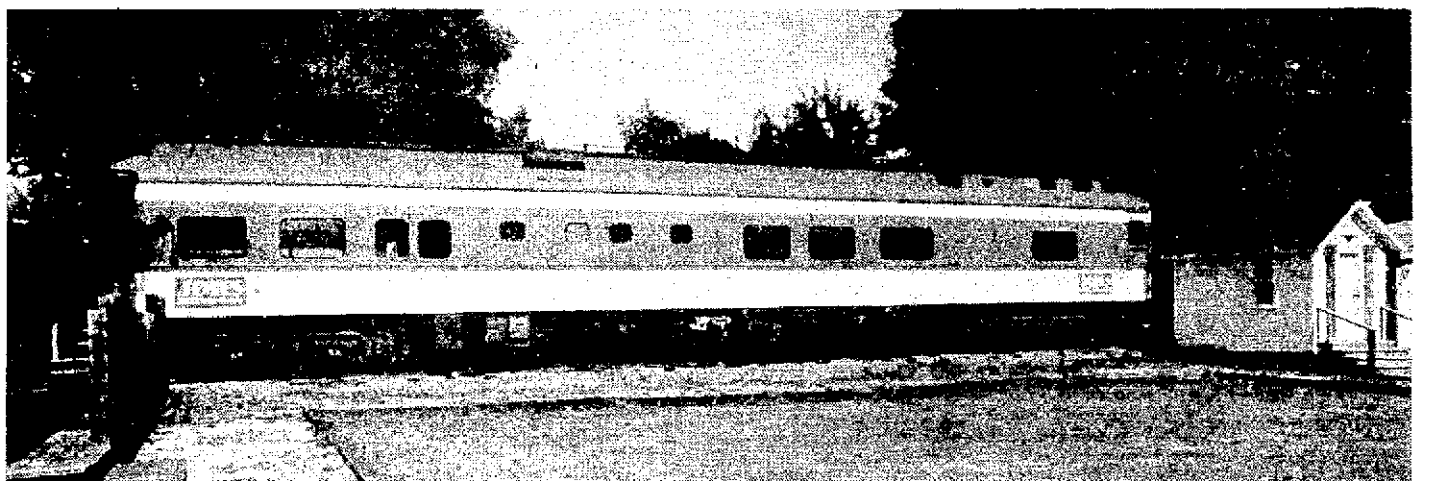

There will, however, be a few obstacles to overcome on this road to power. You will need money — the amount remains uncertain — and a desire to succeed where at least one other man has thrown in the towel.

The cash will not be necessary to reward campaign workers for a job well done. Instead, it will be needed to outbid others who might be in attendance when Jones or "Jones Is Back" as it was dubbed when the development began goes on the auction block Saturday, June 25, and Sunday, June 26, lock, stock and barrel.

Earlier this year, Ed Lowe, millionaire cat litter inventor, announced that his Lowe's Inc. had decided not to reopen the amusement center in eastern Cass county. Lowe launched the attraction in 1973, featuring a throwback to earlier days that ranged from the turn of the century to the 1930s.

After purchasing and then

CAMPAIGN CAR TO GO: This railroad car was once used by late President Eisenhower for presidential campaigning and personal travel and was moved to Jones in 1974. It is among property to be sold.

restoring most of the community to those earlier times. Lowe's firm said an estimated $10 million to $15 million was needed to breathe life into the tourist spot at M-60 and M-10. A study by a Texas firm also suggested that the northern Indiana-southwestern Michigan area could not support continued operation of the enterprise.

Even as Jones gasps possibly its last breath, admission will be charged to those who want to attend the two-day auction.

If our dreams are somewhat smaller, and you would like to own just a piece of the action you can do that too.

On the first day of the auction, June 25, hundreds of antiques and other items will be up for sale. They include antique autos and furniture and modern business equipment and a hot air balloon.

On the second day, nearly 50 parcels of real estate, totaling 80 acres, will be sold to the highest bidder. They include a variety of restored homes and shops to farm buildings and commercial tracts.

The real estate will first be auctioned by individual parcel, and then as one unit, with the sale going to the highest bidder.

The terms, obviously, are cash.

Bicyclist, 8, Injured In Hartford

HARTFORD — An eight-year-old Hartford boy was injured Thursday morning when he was struck by a pickup truck as he rode his bicycle across Beechwood street, according to Hartford police.

William Bunn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bunn, 108 Mary street, was listed in fair condition this morning at Borgess hospital, Kalamazoo, after being transferred from Waterliet Community hospital.

Police said William was attempting to cross in front of the Beechwood Trails mobile home park at 11:52 a.m. when he was struck by a truck driven by Robert Morris, 33, route 1, Beechey road, Hartford. Morris, who was headed east on Beechwood, was not ticketed, police said.

PAW PAW LAKE

Berrien OKs Level Device

lake level control device for Paw Paw lake.

The construction and maintenance of the device would be paid for through a special assessment on lakefront property, Gnodtke told commissioners.

He said a special assessment district — which includes all lakefront property and developed islands — has already been approved by Circuit court Judge Julian Hughes.

The control device must be constructed to maintain the minimum lake level recently set by Hughes, Gnodtke said.

The judge ordered a minimum level of 621.8 feet above mean sea level during the annual period from May 15 to Oct. 15.

Questioned after the meeting, Gnodtke said he has requested engineering studies to determine where to put the control device. He said the device will probably be either an earth dam or sheet piling located somewhere in the channel between the lake and the Paw Paw river.

He said once bids are let and a price is known, a public hearing will be held so property owners in the assessment district can challenge their assessments.

Gnodtke said the control device would serve as a temporary solution until the Army Corps of Engineers completes a detailed study of the lake. That could take several years, he said.

If the Corps determines there is a flooding problem which must be corrected, Gnodtke said, then some federal money will be available for improvements. If no problem is found, then the burden of further improvements would fall entirely on property owners in the special assessment district, he said.

Judge Hughes' ruling on the minimum lake level was requested by the county board of commissioners in 1975.

The board was acting in response to petitions it received signed by more than two-thirds of the lakefront property owners asking for re-establishment of the 621.8-foot level and a determination of responsibility for keeping it at that level.

BODY RECOVERED

L'ANSE, Mich. (AP) — The body of a 72-year-old L'Anse man Alfred Leclaire, has been recovered from the Keewenaw Bay, where he drowned while fishing with his son.

They Weren't Interested

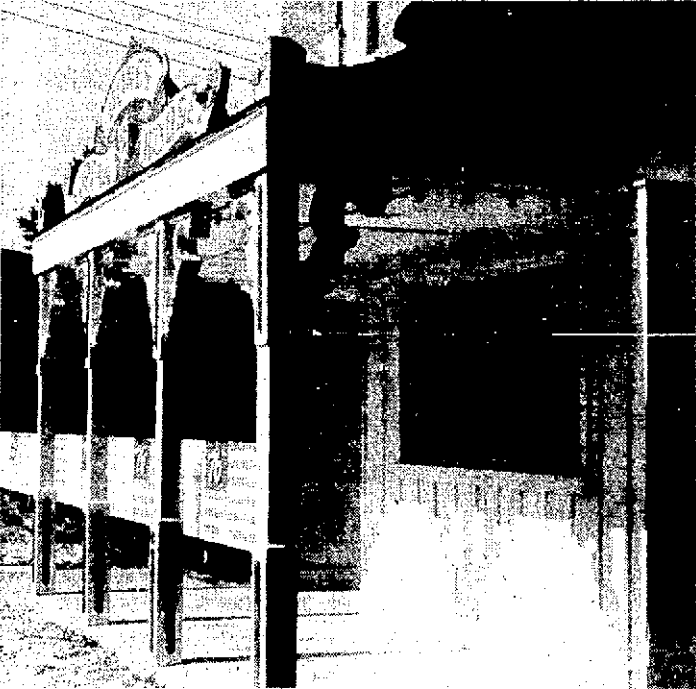

DETROIT (AP) — FBI agents were not interested in learning about a mysterious man who might have poisoned patients at the Ann Arbor Veterans Hospital, a former patient has testified. William Loesch first told agents on Aug. 19, 1975 about the man he saw doing something with his intravenous feeding apparatus just before he became unable to breathe, according to FBI documents produced in U.S. District Court on Thursday. That was four days after the FBI began its investigation. Federal prosecutors contend that Loesch and seven other victims stopped breathing because a muscle relaxant, Pavulon, was injected into their IV apparatus. Loesch said the agents told him they were more interested in hearing about his memories of nurses Filipina Narciso, 31, of Ypsilanti and Leonora Perez, 32, of Ann Arbor, now defendants.

DRIVING COSTS UP

DETROIT (AP) — The cost of operating your new car has increased about 10 per cent since 1975, largely because of an increase in fixed costs, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

STATE 'FIRST': Meredith Hunt, 29, of Redford township, near Detroit, will become first woman officially ordained as an Episcopal priest in Michigan Saturday. She will join a parish in Detroit as a priest-assistant. (AP Wirephoto)

OPERA HOUSE: Jones Opera House in Jones is one of properties to be auctioned later this month. Bids will be taken first on individual properties and then on entire land involved. Highest price will get ownership.

Arnie Can Still Send Sparks Through Golf Gallery

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — At age 47 and wearing the scars of 24 U.S. Opens, Arnold Palmer can still send electrical sparks flying in a golf gallery.

"Excuse me, excuse me," a silver-haired, grandmotherly woman said, shoving her way to the edge of the 18th green. "I want to see Arnold Palmer."

The broad-shouldered man they once called "The Charger" was hunched, characteristically knock-kneed, over a 15-foot putt. He gave the ball a gentle nudge. It rolled resolutely toward the cup, spun around the high side, appeared to drop and then hung precariously on the lip.

What started out as a wild, ecstatic cheer turned into a thunderous moan.

"They thought I had dropped it—so did I," Palmer said afterward, talking about his even par 70—the near 69—which put him up among the leaders in the opening round of the 77th Championship.

"It's amazing," an older man in the gallery commented. "There is something about a Palmer cheer that distinguishes it from all other cheers. It's just as if the crowd is holding its breath while Arnie is putting, the lets it all out when the ball goes home."

Asked about it afterward, Palmer, his thinning hair bleached by hours under the sun, his strong face still boyishly impish, remarked:

"The complete silence—I've noticed it just before I shoot. It weighs on me. I can feel them pulling for me to make it. It charges me up. I like it."

Palmer remains a phenomenon in the mad world of sports. His is a rare, intangible and inexplicable quality reserved for precious few. The modern word for it is "charisma." In the Roaring Twenties—in Clara Bow's day they called it "It."

You either have "It," or you don't. Greatness isn't the gauge. Palmer has it. Jack Nicklaus doesn't. Muhammad Ali has it, but not George Foreman. Joe Namath has it. Fran Tarkenton and Roger Staubach don't. It radiated around Joe DiMaggio but not Ted Williams, a superior hitter. Robert Redford has it, but not Rock Hudson.

Jack Dempsey had it, Gene Tunney didn't. Judy Garland had it, a thousand better singers and actresses could never capture it. Babe Ruth, with his beer barrel belly, pipestem legs and reputation for gluttony, captivated the baseball world but the daring, talented Ty Cobb, maybe the best of all-time—people kept pulling for him to break a leg sliding into second base.

There is a sexual magnetism attached to the quality. Men admire Arnold Palmer, just as they do Nicklaus, but women adore him. They gush and get downright sloppy every time he wrinkles his nose, jerks at a glove or stops to watch the flight of an airplane overhead.

If the question, "Whom would you like to see win the Open?" were put to the thousands of spectators here or to the millions watching on TV, the answer almost certainly would be overwhelming:

"Palmer."

Dedicates Win To Departed Ruhle

'Bird's' The Word

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Watch Mark Fidrych, the Detroit Tigers' eccentric right-hander, pitch long enough, listen to him speak long enough, and you'll learn to expect the unexpected.

Thursday night, he needed just 81 pitches to beat Toronto 4-1. That is pretty close to baseball's version of shouting a 50 on a golf course.

Backed by Ron LeFlore's two home runs, he collected his fourth complete game in five starts since returning to duty after spring knee surgery. He had the Tiger Stadium crowd of 26,000 chanting, "We want Bird! We want Bird!" after the game.

One big surprise came when Fidrych said, "I dedicate this game to Vern Ruhle," referring to a pitcher the Tigers hours earlier had optioned to Evansville of the American Association.

The reason? "He taught me how not to get strikeouts," explained "The Bird" after beating the Blue Jays in the Audubon Society Classic.

Not to get strikeouts? We told you never to be surprised.

"In the minors I said I wasn't striking anybody out and he said, 'Why should you? You have eight guys behind you. You're not a strikeout pitcher.

Get 'em to hit the ball on the ground.'"

Fidrych's aura of mystery appears to be contagious. Consider the case of LeFlore, whose birthday made him 25 years old going on 29.

"If I could have days like this on my birthday all the time, I'd want one every day," said LeFlore after hitting home runs in the third and fifth innings, giving Fidrych all the scoring he needed.

Asked his age, the outfielder said, "25," then broke into a grin which cast doubt on the number's authenticity. Some contend he is four years older.

At any rate, he collected two of Detroit's five hits off Toronto's Jerry Garvin, 7-4. One of the others was a two-run homer by Steve Kemp in the eighth.

In the other AL games Thursday, the Minnesota Twins beat Nolan Ryan and the California Angels 7-6; the New York Yankees bombed the Kansas City Royals 7-0; the Baltimore Orioles beat the Milwaukee Brewers 6-0; the Chicago White Sox drubbed the Boston Red Sox 7-3, and the Seattle Mariners topped the Oakland A's 3-1.

One thing is certain when Nolan Ryan pitches: that the strikeouts will come in bunches for the veteran right-hander. He struck out 14 Minnesota Twins but contributed to his undoing with a throwing error, a balk, two wild pitches and a costly walk.

He fanned Lyman Bostock in the eighth inning for the 2,250th strikeout of his career, reaching fourth place on the all-time strikeout list. But he walked Butch Wynegar in the bottom of the ninth with the score tied and Wynegar later scored the winning run on Rob Wilfong's single.

Young Ron Guidry solved a mental block about pitching complete games, hurling a nifty three-hitter and cruising to victory on three hits by Mickey Rivers.

Rivers cracked a two-run homer in the fifth inning in support of Guidry. Four times this season the pitcher had carried leads into the ninth inning, only to leave before the game's conclusion.

Andres Mora and Al Bumbry snatched two-run homers for Baltimore in support of Rudy May's six-hit shutout of Milwaukee. Mora's second homer of the season followed an infield single by Doug DeCinces. Bumbry connected for his third after a single by Rick Dempsey.

Padres Snap Cub Win String At Six

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dave Winfield, Gene Tenace and George Hendrick each drove in two runs Thursday night to lead the San Diego Padres to an 8-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs, snapping the Cubs' six-game winning streak.

Hendrick and Tenace both clouted solo homers as the Padres broke a four-game losing streak. Tenace led the Padres' 10-hit attack against four Cubs pitchers with three hits.

Rookie Padre left-hander Bob Shirley, 6-6, held the Cubs to one run over the first five innings. Dave Winfield, Rick Sawyer and Don Spillner finished up with Spillner picking up his second save.

Chicago second baseman Manny Trillo had three hits in four trips, including his third homer of the year. Trillo, the league's leading hitter, had eight hits in 10 at bats during the three-game series. Trillo is now hitting .382.

The Cubs rallied for three runs in the ninth on a solo homer by Steve Swisher and RBI singles by Ivan DeJesus and pinch-hitter Larry Bittner.

"Tonight's game was like a breather for us," New York Mets Manager Joe Torre said Thursday. And it was no wonder.

"Last night (Wednesday), the guys were unsettled, it being June 15th and the trading deadline," added Torre, whose team dealt away star pitcher Tom Seaver, slugger Dave Kingman and infielder Mike Phillips in a major housecleaning Wednesday. "There was a nervous feeling on the bench tonight—but things couldn't have been worse than last night."

The results for the Mets were the same both nights. They defeated Houston 4-3 Thursday night after edging Atlanta 6-5 Wednesday night. The victories brought the last-place Mets within a half-game of fifth-place Montreal in the National League East.

The Mets rallied from a 3-1 deficit to win. Starter Nino Espinosa, 4-4, doubled in a run and John Mither hit his seventh homer of the season, but the tying and winning runs scored on a two-run error by Houston shortstop Julio Gonzalez.

In the other National League games, San Francisco downed St. Louis 5-1, San Diego broke Chicago's six-game victory streak with an 8-6 triumph over the Cubs and Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 3-2 in 11 innings.

Jim Barr's seven-hitter, his ninth lifetime victory over the Cardinals against three losses, paced the Giants.

"I'm not putting down the St. Louis hitters," said Barr. "But they tend to have more singles hitters than power hitters. They swing at more pitches. Power hitters wait for pitches they want."

Terry Whitfield had three hits, including his fourth homer of the season, in support of Barr, 8-5.

Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly drove home Bill Russell with the winning run for the Dodgers. Russell had allowed the Pirates to tie the score in the ninth when he booted Bobby Tolson's two-out grounder.

The Dodgers carried a 2-0 lead into the ninth on the strength of Reggie Smith's two-run homer, his 15th of the season.

Doug Rau had a seven-hitter through eight innings before surrendering a double to Bill Robinson and a run-scoring single to Jim Fregosi. Stan Wall and Charlie Hough followed Rau to the mound, with Hough, 4-4, getting the victory.

Whitaker Pitches Hartford Victory

Hartford Legion's Dave Whitaker may have a sore arm but it sure didn't hurt him much Thursday night.

Whitaker hurled a one-hitter as Hartford blanked St. Joseph Reds 2-0 in a Blue-Gray game. In other league contests, St. Joseph Post 163 remained unbeaten by taking Niles 9-3 and Benton Harbor walloped Stevensville 14-2.

Hartford gave Whitaker all the runs he needed in the fifth inning. Mark Birtman and Tom Vandervort got on base on errors and Don Burnibus doubled him home. Whitaker struck out five and walked three in going the distance.

The Twins are 1-5 overall and 1-4 in the league.

Winning pitcher Paul Knuth of St. Joe Legion helped his own cause as he stroked a single and double and knocked in four runs. Herb Ross, Kurt Felgner and Mark Ignatovich all doubled in a run. Steve Ross had two singles and Carey Ross knocked in a tally.

St. Joe put the game away with four runs in the first four innings. In the first, Knuth doubled, two home and Felgner and Ignatovich each doubled in a single run. Knuth then singled in two runs in the fourth.

Bill Mann had two of Niles' five hits as Pat Grounds took the loss.

St. Joe is 6-1 on the season and 3-0 in the Blue-Gray.

Benton Harbor exploded for nine runs in the second inning to seal its victory. It then added four in the third frame.

Winning pitcher Steve McNitt had a home run in the first frame as Benton Harbor pounded out 13 hits. Doug Thompson was the loser.

Stevensville is 0-2 overall and 0-1 in the league.

Kickers Retain Division Lead

The St. Joe Kickers retained their first division lead in the Western Michigan Soccer League last weekend while battling the Lansing Americas, the second division leader, to a 0-0 deadlock.

The Kickers, now 3-0-2, don't play this week. Benton Harbor Dunk, a loser last weekend to the Kalamazoo Arvo Internationals by a 3-0 count, also has a bye this week.

Mark Lehmann of the Kickers continues to lead the league in scoring with 13 goals.

Career Clips

Steve Wells (Downing) won a varsity letter on the Western Michigan golf team. The senior averaged 77.9 for 18 holes.

New Rock Coach From Anchorage

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Never let it be said that Berrien Springs sticks close to home when looking for a new coach.

The board of education last night approved the hiring of Stewart G. Schofield as the Shamrocks' new head basketball coach.

Schofield, 27, has been the varsity mentor at Robert Service high school in Anchorage, Alaska, for the past three years. He compiled a 57-49 record in a league which has produced the state champion in Alaska for the past six years.

Last season, Service had a 10-10 regular season record and finished in the middle of the league.

Oddly enough, Berrien Springs was 10-10 under coach Connie Stover last season. The Shamrocks lost their first district game to Buchanan 74-70.

Schofield graduated from Oceanside high school near San Diego and then attended Montana State, where he played basketball and baseball.

He transferred to Brigham Young and graduated from there in 1971. His first three years at Service he served as junior varsity coach before being elevated to the varsity position.

"I generally prefer running a motion offense and a pressure defense," he stated. "I will play both man-to-man and zone defenses. Taking over a new program will be a challenge. I'm very excited about it."

Schofield, his wife, Grace, and their two children will be arriving in southwestern Michigan in July.

STEWART SCHOFIELD

German Golfer Enters Am

BENTON HARBOR — With an annual entry list that has grown to over 500 contestants, it is not surprising that the Western Amateur golf tournament has started to take on an international flavor.

In recent years the prestigious tournament has attracted such entrants as Jaime Gonzalez of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Jim Nelford of Burnaby, British Columbia; Jim Stewart of Singapore, Malaysia; and Rafael Alarcon of Guadalajara, Mexico. . . to mention just a few.

To that list this summer will be added the name of an experienced internationalist, Veit Pagel of Hanover, Germany, who has submitted his entry for the Diamond Anniversary Western Amateur Aug. 3-7 at Point O'Woods Golf & Country Club.

Unlike most of the other foreign entrants, who have been young players with affiliations to U.S. college teams, Pagel is a veteran who at 31 years of age has won 10 European amateur titles and has been a member of Germany's last three World Cup teams.

He won the German Amateur championship in 1974, the Greek Amateur championship in 1971 and has been runner-up in the French, Italian and Scandinavian Amateur tournaments.

A 1-handicap member of the Hamburg-Falkenstein Golf Club, Pagel has participated in more than 50 international team events and was selected on the continental European team that played against a combined Great Britain-Ireland squad in the 1972 and 1976 St. Andrews Trophy matches.

A former German Junior champion (1964), he has won the Hamburg state championship seven times — including a string of six straight from 1970-75 — and just recently finished fourth among both professionals and amateurs in the 1977 German Open.

Wings Unveil 'Mystery Coach'... It's Bobby Kromm

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Red Wings' "mystery coach" has finally been revealed, but the mystery remains as to whether Bobby Kromm can do what so many others failed to do — get the team back to National Hockey League respectability.

Kromm, who coached the Winnipeg Jets to one playoff championship and one runner-up spot in two seasons in the World Hockey Association, was named coach of the Red Wings on Thursday.

He said he signed a three-year contract. Salary was not disclosed.

It is the 11th coaching change in nine years for Detroit, which finished last in the NHL Norris Division last season. The Red Wings have missed the Stanley Cup playoffs 10 times in the last 11 years.

Kromm replaces Larry Wilson, hired on an interim basis last January when Alex Delvecchio stepped down to devote full time to his general manager job. Delvecchio was fired and ex-Detroit superstar Ted Lindsay became general manager last March.

Kromm had been rumored to be the team's next coach since last summer. The Red Wings announced then that they had hired someone who wouldn't take over for a year.

When Lindsay moved into the front office he said he wanted Wilson to remain as coach.

"I'll all work out. I'll all work out for the positive," Lindsay said Thursday.

"I don't say it's embarrassing and I don't say it's awkward. I did say Larry was the man I wanted, but there's a contract involved here. So Bobby will do the job. Bobby and I will get along very well. I'm sure. And Larry can contribute to the organization."

Lindsay said he expects Oklahoma City of the Central Hockey League to become a Detroit farm club, with Wilson almost sure to become the team's coach. Kromm anticipates a rapport with Lindsay.

"I know there's been talk about our personalities conflicting," he said. "I know Ted is a lot like I am. I like to work with people who think the same as I do. Our goal is to bring the Red Wings back to where they were (20 years ago). I know there's a most difficult task here."

Kromm, 48, calls himself "a disciplinarian. Tough, but also fair and honest."

The Red Wings will be "a great challenge," he said, sounding like his recent predecessors. "There's a lot of work to do. I'm one who likes to work. I'm not a God."

Kromm's attorney, Ron Roberts, said Kromm signed the contract with Detroit last July when he had a year left at Winnipeg.

"Winnipeg made a very fine offer to Bob," Roberts said. "... but he's always wanted to coach in the National Hockey League. Bob held a great deal of loyalty to Winnipeg. But I was handling the negotiations and my personal feelings didn't interfere with the negotiations."

A news conference was scheduled to 3:30 p.m. (EDT) to announce Kromm's appointment. It didn't begin until 4 p.m. because Kromm caught his hand in a baggage zipper during a customs inspection at the airport and had to have five stitches.

"I don't like players being late for practice," Kromm said. "I don't like being late myself." He said if Lindsay had decided he wanted to retain Wilson "I certainly wouldn't have held them up."

But Roberts said: "They'd have had to pay him for three years. It's that simple. He'd get paid for not working."

Delvecchio, Red Wings owner Bruce Norris and team vice president John Ziegler first approached Kromm about the Detroit job at the draft meetings in Montreal last summer, Kromm said.

"The way in which the negotiations were handled it wasn't tampering," Roberts claimed.

"There was never any intention on the part of Detroit or any of its representatives or myself to interfere with the contract Bobby had with them (the Jets) ... Everything was conditional upon Bob completing all his contractual obligations to the Winnipeg Jets."

Kromm, a lean native of Calgary, Alberta, was in the NHL Chicago Black Hawks system for eight years. He coached their Dallas farm team to a first-place finish in the CHL three times, second and third twice each and were out of the playoffs only one season.

He was voted CHL Coach of the Year in 1972.

Kromm guided Winnipeg to victory over Houston for the WHA's Avco Cup title two years ago. Last season the Jets lost to Quebec in the final game of the playoffs.

In 1961 Kromm coached the Trail, British Columbia, Smoke Eaters to the Allen Cup — symbolic of supremacy in the Canadian Senior Hockey League.

Time Needed For Improvement

Detroit Coaches Come And Go

By LARRY PALADINO
AP Sports Writer
OPINION:

Can anybody imagine the Detroit Red Wings having the same coach for three years?

Larry Wilson is the latest to come spinning out of the Red Wings' revolving door of coaches. Bobby Kromm went in and hopes to last a while longer than his predecessors over the last decade.

Kromm says he's signed a three-year contract. That's got to say something for his ability.

It would be easy to slough off the latest change. The Red Wings change coaches so often it has become a joke. It's a wonder why the television crews don't just leave their equipment set up at Olympia Stadium for the next inevitable coaching-change news conference.

But somehow a three-year contract gives an indication that Bruce Norris, owner of the National Hockey League team, doesn't expect miracles and will give Kromm a legitimate chance to prove himself.

Before, it seemed as if he expected his new coaches to come in and turn things around within a year. If they didn't, it was believed to be their fault and they were booted out.

Kromm won't be able to make silk purses from sows ears, but he does have some good credentials. Two years ago he coached the Winnipeg Jets to the World Hockey Association championship. Last season his Jets lost in the championship series that went the maximum seven games against Quebec.

The Red Wings, who have reached the NHL playoffs once in the last 11 years, have made 11 coaching changes in the last nine years. That's not counting assistant coach Billy Dea, who was acting as coach much of the time when Alex Delvecchio held both the coach and general manager jobs.

The turmoil began in 1968 when Bill Gadsby replaced Sid Abel. Since then Doug Barkley (twice), Delvecchio (twice), Alvin Gagne, Ted Garvin, Ned Harkness, Johnny Wilson and Larry Wilson have all had a shot at the coach's job.

Frankly, I don't expect Kromm to do any better than any of them — unless they let him stick around through the full term of his contract. And General Manager Ted Lindsay has to do a lot of work.

If Lindsay is as good a front-office hockey man as he was a player, he should be able to provide Kromm with some better material with which to work.

You might ask why a guy would leave a successful team like Winnipeg for a struggling team like Detroit.

Kromm says he always wanted to coach in the NHL. That, and the fact that the WHA seems continually on the verge of folding, makes his decision seems quite rational.

It's confusing, though, how he could sign an agreement with Detroit last July while still the coach at Winnipeg. Kromm's lawyer, Ron Roberts, insists there was no tampering involved. Everything was above board and legal, he said.

It'll be interesting to see if the Jets pursue the thievery.

It'll be more interesting to see if the strong-willed Lindsay and Kromm, who says he's his own man, clash over the way things should be run. If they work well together the Red Wings might be able to reverse gears in three years. If not, you'll be reading about another coaching change in nine or 10 months.

Future Olympics Could Be Operated At Profit

PRAGUE (AP) — Who said the Olympic Games were too expensive? Montreal, last year's host city, proved that given existing stadiums and facilities the Games can be run at a handsome profit.

A final report from Montreal to the 79th session of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) showed that the organizing committee had an excess of revenue over costs of $126 million.

All the debt left by the Montreal Games—estimated at between $200 million and $300 million—is borne by the city of Montreal and the province of Quebec, which undertook the building.

That is cheering news for the IOC, which later this year has to choose a city to host the Games of 1984. If the IOC picks a city that has all its facilities in place, the Games can still make a few dollars.

Many IOC members believe the 1984 Games will be in Los Angeles, which has most of the necessary competition sites and enough university buildings to house the athletes.

The U.S. National Olympic Committee has still to confirm Los Angeles as a candidate. Bids for 1984 have to be made to the IOC by Oct. 31 this year.

The Montreal report showed that the organizing committee (COJO) had operating expenses of $140 million, capital costs of $47 million and a loan for the village of $76 million, a total of $263 millions.

Its estimated consolidated revenues were $380 million.

The Montreal report spelled out the kinds of problems facing cities that want to host the Olympics.

There were 8,850 athletes and team officials at Montreal. The figure would have been 10,219 if 27 African countries had not staged a last-minute withdrawal as a protest against New Zealand's sports links with South Africa.

A million people visited Montreal for the Games.

The IOC session lasts through Saturday. It still has to deal with the future program of the Games and the question of discipline against Montreal's African boycotters.

Moscow, the host city for 1980, and Lake Placid, N.Y., which is to stage the Winter Games, presented progress reports Thursday.

NBA Concludes Dull Meetings Day Early

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — One year ago, the National Basketball Association's summer meetings were full of sound and fury, signifying an end to nine years of warfare via merger with the American Basketball Association.

This year the sounds were muffled, no fury was evident and the greatest significance in the developments was their lack of significance.

"I'd like to report that we had some earth-shattering developments at our meetings today, but I just can't say that," NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien told a news conference Thursday, the final day of the NBA Board of Governors meetings which were cut short by one day because of the smooth sailing.

The only potential trouble facing the governors lay in the shaky financial status of the four teams which joined the NBA from the ABA a year ago. The problems facing the Indiana Pacers, for one, were severe enough to foster talk of moving that franchise.

But on the first day of the meetings, the NBA governors adopted a two-point program designed to ease the new teams' financial burdens.

The league agreed to defer until June, 1980, the deadline for payment of the final $200,000 of the teams' entry fees, money which had been due this month. And, in what was described as an effort to make it easier for the four ex-ABA teams to borrow money, the league agreed to take a back seat to any lending institution before laying claim to the franchise's assets in the event of default.

White Sox Send Brett To Angels Cincy Insures Dynasty?

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
For New York Mets baseball fans, June 15, 1977 may go down in history as a day of infamy. For Cincinnati Reds followers, that date may be recorded as the day the team insured its dynasty.

Manager Sparky Anderson said after his club sent pitcher Pat Zachry, the co-Rookie of the Year in 1976, infielder Doug Flynn and minor league outfielders Dan Norman and Steve Henderson to New York for the 22-year-old Seaver.

The two-time defending world champion Reds trailed the Los Angeles Dodgers by seven games in the National League West when the deal was made. Many observers felt the acquisition of Seaver would carry the Reds past Los Angeles and on to a third straight NL West pennant and the world championship.

trade, and the reactions to it, overshadowed a slew of other major league transactions just before the trading deadline.

The Reds were the busiest traders, completing a total of five deals. In addition to the Seaver trade, the Reds sent unsigned, unhappy relief pitcher Rawly Eastwick to St. Louis for left-hander Doug Capilla; dealt Gary Nolan to California for minor league infielder Craig Hendrickson and a player to be named later; purchased the contract of infielder Rick Ansbach from Texas, and traded hurler Mike Caldwell to Milwaukee for a pair of minor leaguers.

Finley Feuds With Kuhn Again After Seaver Swap

NEW YORK (AP) — The voice of Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland A's and self-acclaimed "staunchest enemy" of baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, cracked over the telephone.

Kuhn, conducted in and out of the courts over the past few years, was in motion again. Finley was incensed over the trade of pitcher Tom Seaver by the New York Mets to the Cincinnati Reds. Finley, involved in several legal skirmishes with the commissioner and pledged to more, could not understand why the Seaver deal went through since Kuhn had voided his sale of pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees last year.

Kuhn, confirms his perverted, selective and political use of his office to favor his friends and punish his enemies.

Finley, whose sale of Blue to the Yanks and sales of Rollie Fingers and Joe Rudi to Boston were voided by Kuhn last summer, told The Associated Press Thursday night: "Kuhn's irresponsible and selective use of his office is a dishonor to the game of baseball, insulting to the millions of baseball fans and a total betrayal to the once-respected office of the commissioner."

Aside from Seaver, some other well-known players changed addresses:

They included:

- Outfielder Bake McBride, the NL's 1974 Rookie of the Year, who was sent from St. Louis to Philadelphia for pitcher Tom Underwood and two minor leaguers.
- Slogger Dave Kingman, who the Mets peddled to San Diego for infielder Bobby Valentine and pitcher Paul Siebert.
- Pitcher Ken Brett, who went from the Chicago White Sox to the Angels for pitchers Dan Kirkwood and John Verhoeven, a minor leaguer and cash.
- Pitcher Dock Ellis, who Finley sold to Texas.

Allen Helps Keep Arizona State Alive

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — College baseball has found its answer to The Bird.

Arizona State do-it-all Jamie Allen doesn't talk to the ball like Mark Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers but it seemed that way as he kept the top-rated Sun Devils alive Thursday night in the College World Series by preserving a 6-2 victory over South Carolina.

"I'm not showing off out there," said the enthusiastic Allen. "It's just something that helps me get ready. Most of the time, I'm more subdued. But I really bring it out for big games."

The freshman right-hander wiggled out of a bases-loaded jam and pitched three innings of one-hit relief to hand South Carolina its first loss of the series.

He stalked around the mound, jumped up and down after strikes, frequently backed off the mound and taunted batters to get in the box.

"Allen really put on quite a show," said Arizona State Coach Jim Brock. "Coming in and throwing fast balls after Mitch (Dean) had thrown so many breaking pitches kept them off balance."

Southern Illinois staged the biggest comeback of the series and upended California State-Los Angeles 9-7 in the night's elimination-round game.

Southern Illinois, 41-11, is matched against top-rated Arizona State, 50-12, in an elimination game Friday night with the survivor facing South Carolina for the series crown Saturday night.

South Carolina, 43-11-1, received a bye into the finals by beating Southern Illinois 5-4 Wednesday night in a meeting of their series unbeaten.

Mets Close Seaver Era

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver headed for Montreal today to join his new teammates, the Cincinnati Reds, and left behind him the end of an era for the New York Mets.

From the time he joined the Mets in 1966 until his trade late Wednesday night, Seaver was the cornerstone of the franchise. In 11 seasons, he won 189 games for a team that only occasionally was better than mediocre. He established a barometer of pitching excellence against which all other hurlers were measured.

He had mixed emotions as he cleared out his locker at Shea Stadium one last time. "It's happy and sad," he said. "It's all over. It's done. It's sad because you leave memories and people you've worked with for 12 years. Buddy Harrelson ... Jerry Kousman ... Jerry Grote ... people you have love and respect for."

When Seaver was asked if he had any last words for Met fans, he lost his composure. He dropped his chin to his chest and he became glassy-eyed as he tried to formulate an answer to the question. But emotion overcame him and he asked for a break in the locker room news conference.

After about 10 minutes, Seaver returned and tried again to answer the question. But he choked up twice.

"If I can retain enough composure to talk for about 30 seconds, I'll have it made," he said.

But he could not. He managed only a few words.

"I've given them a great number of thrills and they've been equally returned ...," he began. But again, emotion took over.

Finally, simply unable to speak, he borrowed a reporter's pad and pencil to write a few final words to the fans who had cheered him on during his career and had swamped the Stadium telephone switchboard with calls of protest when rumors of his impending trade spread through the city this week.

Food Knowledge Lands Her On 'Talk' Circuit

By GINNY PITT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If you ask Marie Rama what she likes most about her job, she'll tell you about the rotten rutabaga in Boston. Or the disjointed toe in Baltimore. Or the late movie in Cincinnati.

Miss Rama is a professional talk show guest, appearing on as many as 11 television and radio shows a week in just about every major or medium-sized city in the nation. She works for a public relations firm representing the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, and her job is to tell you everything you always wanted to know about buying, storing and preparing fresh food.

She discusses the condition of the crops in 60-second news interviews, demonstrates how to wash a turnip on local TV personalities' programs and answers every conceivable question on two-hour radio phone-in shows. Many of her appearances are live.

"On a program in Boston I was showing how to cut open a rutabaga," she recalls with some dismay. "I was very carefully explaining how to push down on the knife in the right direction, and when I got the thing open I held it right up to the camera — it was rotten inside."

The program hostess made a face, and Miss Rama began to giggle uncontrollably. All she could say was: "Well, now you see what a rotten rutabaga looks like."

If it ever happens again, Miss Rama says, she'll turn the unfortunate incident to her advantage by telling viewers the importance of returning bad fruits or vegetables to their merchants.

Learning by experience has been the rule for the 36-year-old Miss Rama, who comes from a large Italian family in Yorktown Heights, N.Y. Dinner was the main event of the day when she was growing up, and her father and grandfather were both chefs. Her three aunts still run a specialty grocery store. She graduated from Allegheny College in Pennsylvania with a degree in English, "but I all really knew about was food."

After a brief stint as a pastry chef at a restaurant in Cambridge, Mass., she came to New York and was hired to promote fruits and vegetables on television. For three months of the year she works in her firm's New York City office, developing recipes and collecting information about fruits and vegetables. For the other nine months she travels from city to city facing cameras and microphones she's never quite learned to face without nervousness.

"You're always afraid things won't come out smoothly or that something will go wrong," she says. "But generally everything works out. Of course, I've held up turnips and said, 'Today we're going to talk about carrots,' and I've made all sorts of slips, but you just have to keep going."

When she's on the road, Miss Rama is on her own. But before she leaves New York, most arrangements are taken care of — hotel, airline and car rental reservations by a travel agent and radio and television bookings by the agency's Sue Ferer.

Miss Ferer works in a closet-sized office in the agency's spacious midtown Manhattan headquarters. She may juggle producers and station managers in as many as 30 cities at once to schedule appearances for Miss Rama and other representatives. Miss Ferer usually handles four or five at once, and her agency is just one of hundreds in the city.

Although Miss Rama and others represent products, neither she nor Miss Ferer consider themselves salespeople.

"I don't like the word 'sell,'" says Miss Ferer. "You don't have to sell something when there's really a need for it. I think of it more as a public service. ... Many of these shows — especially in the smaller cities where not too many people are coming through — have 20 segments a week to produce, and there is always a need for someone to tell how to buy, store and prepare fresh food."

Cook County Jail Chief Is Acquitted

(CHICAGO AP) — The acting head of the Cook County Corrections Department and five employees have been acquitted in Circuit Court on charges that they beat two inmates, then lied to cover up the incident.

Judge James M. Bailey on Thursday freed Winston E. Moore and five others, who were charged with perjury and battery, by granting a defense motion to dismiss the case.

The judge said the prosecution had "failed miserably" during the six-week bench trial to prove the allegations. He said he was "not about to ruin the lives of these defendants," on the basis of the evidence presented.

Moore, the acting executive director of the Cook County corrections department, was removed from his every-day operation of the jail following an indictment charging him with beating the two prisoners.

The prisoners, convicted murderers Tyrone Thompson and Freddie Martin, charged that on June 9, 1976, they were brutalized after an alleged escape attempt.

Ex-Eaton Deputy Accused Of Murder

CHARLOTTE, Mich. (AP) — A 47-year-old former Eaton County deputy sheriff was arraigned Thursday on first-degree murder charges in the shooting death of his wife.

Robert Carl Thompson of Charlotte was ordered held without bond following his arraignment in 50th District Court here. A preliminary exam was set for July 12.

Eaton County sheriff's authorities said Thompson was arrested Thursday on a warrant naming him in the shooting death of his wife, Janette Sue Thompson, 36.

Mrs. Thompson was shot five times early Wednesday morning as she opened the Sky King truckstop near here, authorities said.

About $80 was taken from the truckstop. Sheriff's deputies said they recovered the same amount of money, along with a .25 caliber automatic handgun, from Thompson's home when he was arrested.

Thompson was identified as a former Eaton County deputy, and former member of the Charlotte, Laingsburg and Porterville police departments. He currently is a car salesman.

Sheriff Art Kelsey said the Thompsons had been married about 18 years.

An autopsy showed Mrs. Thompson had been shot once in the head and four times in the chest with a .25 caliber automatic pistol, authorities said.

Ken Ehrlich Combines Art, Popular Appeal

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A year ago, Ken Ehrlich was in his third season as executive producer of Public TV's "Soundstage," the acclaimed pop and jazz music show made at station WTTW in Chicago.

This month, he became producer of NBC's "Midnight Special," the made-in-Burbank pop series that often rocks and rolls to satisfy those souls still awake when it starts at 1 a.m. EDT on Saturdays.

Worlds apart? Not really, says Ehrlich, 33, a short, energetic man with a beard. Of course, with his old show, he combed, "I wasn't committed to pulling a rating."

They tend to think about ratings at NBC, he adds, "so here it's different in that I'm trying to combine an artistic approach with a commercial approach."

Which means having certified audience-getters — Neil Sedaka and Fleetwood Mac are on this week's bill — sharing the limelight with such lesser-known performers as singer Carol Bayer Sager.

But producer Ehrlich emphasizes he's never felt that in music wide popularity means bad and relative obscurity means good.

"My criteria for 'Soundstage' was always excellence," he says. "So I'd go from Barry Manilow to Randy Newman, from the Bee Gees to Tom Waits."

And, he said, the same criteria prevails now.

He gave a prompt "no" when asked if he's pressured to book "Midnight Special" guests simply on the basis of how hot they are in current record charts. He cited a recent show he coproduced.

It featured superstars George Benson and Van Morrison, but also included pianist-singer Dr. John, singer Etta James and tenor sax man Tom Scott, the last mainly known in jazz circles.

The show did well in the ratings, Ehrlich said, "and it proved to me — and I think to some network people — that this kind of show can succeed, it doesn't always have to be programmed to appeal to the largest record-buying audience."

The producer, who hopes to make every fifth "Midnight Special" a kind of music super-session, emphasizing old-fashioned jam sessions, said the custom of booking the latest overnight pop music sensation "does not happen in prime time variety shows."

"There are lists of people who are acceptable and who aren't," he said. "But with ours, because of the (late-hour) nature of the beast, it's a more open show. There isn't any list tied to who sells records...."

QUITE A CHANGE: Sandra Ruddle is shown at right in 1974 when she tipped the scales at 403. At left she is shown some two years later after losing some 270 pounds. The loss all came about because of controversial intestinal bypass surgery. (AP Wirephoto)

FROM 403 POUNDS TO 130-140

Woman Loses Weight, Mate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sandra Ruddle says her losing 272 pounds through an intestinal bypass operation caused her husband to kill himself and left her in such pain that she became a heroin addict. Three years ago, Ms. Ruddle, then 35 and weighing 403 pounds, was one of the few persons accepted for the operation at Los Angeles County's Harbor General Hospital. Today her weight fluctuates between 130 and 140 pounds.

She said that within a year of the operation, her husband, 11 years her senior, felt so threatened by the change that he hanged himself. He "started freaking out, raging that I was going to bed with everybody. . .," she said. "I wanted to get out and go to school; he wanted me home as before."

Ms. Ruddle said that today she has pain so severe that she cannot hold a job or drive a standard-shift car. She said she was addicted to heroin for a time because of the pain. She also said she wants surgery to correct skin and fat that hangs from her arms, abdomen and legs.

The hospital warned her that complications or even death could result from the operation, in which surgeons hook up the small intestine so that food is absorbed by only two feet instead of the intestine's entire 22-foot length. But she said she wishes doctors had pointed out the psychological stress involved in the weight loss. She said most women who have had the operation have not stayed with their men.

"Think how insecure a man would feel," she said. "You may not look like Marilyn Monroe after the operation, but after you've lost all that weight, believe me, you feel like her." Dr. Richard Atkinson, an internist at the hospital's Clinical Study Center, said the operation is done for research and is not encouraged. He estimated that 25,000 such operations have been done across the country.

NEW PLACES TO TRAVEL Carter Eyes World Atlas

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 20 years of jet-age travel by American presidents has whittled down the number of White House options for going someplace different, but Jimmy Carter has a searching finger on his world atlas.

The President, who has tried to "break the mold" in approaches to foreign policy, is described by associates as equally eager to seek out fresh travel destinations. Although Carter has said he probably won't go overseas again this year, having visited England and Switzerland last month, aides already are searching out innovative possibilities at his behest.

One who is privy to the preliminary and still-tentative search is pointing to black Africa and Latin America as offering likely prospects, which could be unsettling news to French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.

While Carter was in London, he and his French counterpart had a cordial private session during which the American chief executive was invited to visit Paris, preferably in the fall.

The meeting had barely ended when French officials began leaking word that they expected Carter in their capital later this year. The prospect meant a lot to them because, many observers believe, Giscard d'Estaing would welcome whatever outfalls Carter might provide for his center-right coalition that faces a major challenge from the left in parliamentary elections next March.

Alas, Carter had hardly had time to read about the French leaks in the European press than he went out of his way to say he had not agreed to make the Paris trip this year but rather had said he would like to visit France at some unspecified, mutually acceptable time.

It is probably pure coincidence that France is the one country where Carter has said he was treated badly during his foreign travels as governor of Georgia. And he surely is no more anxious than Giscard d'Estaing to see the French Communist party score gains in the March balloting.

However, a White House source who should be knowledgeable about the matter reports another Carter trip to Europe this year is quite unlikely. But he did not rule out such a journey before March, and it should be noted that timetables for international economic summits, like the one in London, are somewhat flexible. Another conceivably could be arranged to complement the electoral needs of the French president.

The same source who questioned the likelihood of a quick return to Europe added that travel to some other continent is a possibility for late 1977 or early 1978.

One official suggested that chances of a presidential journey to Latin America were enhanced by the generally favorable reception accorded Rosalynn Carter during her south-of-the-border tour that ended Sunday.

Another enticement might be the fact that the most recent U.S. presidents, Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford, never got farther south than Mexico. However, Latin America cannot be regarded as terra incognita in the broader sweep of presidential travel.

Franklin D. Roosevelt went south to expound his "Good Neighbor policy." Dwight D. Eisenhower was welcomed as a world hero. John F. Kennedy captured Latin imaginations with his Alliance for Progress.

If Carter is determined to do something different, black Africa offers the most fertile territory. Eisenhower visited North Africa and Nixon went to Egypt. But no incumbent president ever toured any of the African countries with black majorities and black leadership.

JOHN P. ROCHE A Word Edgewise

June is a slow time, and reporters dealing with President Jimmy Carter's talks do have a problem — his observations resemble a herd of dependent clauses in search of a topic sentence.

So perhaps it's understandable if journalists dozed a bit on reading the transcript of his meeting on June 10 with the Magazine Publishers' Association. Carter's text for the day was that we would aggressively but peacefully challenge Moscow in our quest for friendship. At least the Associated Press and David Binder of the New York Times billed in this way.

All hands but the B.B.C. correspondent missed the real lead: a solid boot at Ambassador Andrew Young's "unfortunate" use of the term "racist." In fact, Carter firmly lowered the boom on his roving missionary, suggesting his characterization of the Swedes as racists was uncalled for, and indicating that Young was too involved with Africa and should look around the rest of the world a while.

This was accompanied by the interesting formulation that "when (Young) speaks for our country, he speaks with my full authority and my complete support." A number of us have been wondering precisely when Young "speaks for our country," and when he does not.

Mr. Carter has now provided himself with an escape hatch: if Young in some unguided and unguarded moment should, for example, oppose the withdrawal of American troops from Korea, there would be no need for a shoot-out in the Oval Office, and Young presumably would not be transferred to direct the Foreign Service Institute.

This is nice for the President, but how do the rest of us learn when Young is on an official wavelength and when he is expressing his personal views? Perhaps he should be equipped with a little lapel light which would flash green or red to distinguish official from unofficial pronouncements?

Indeed, as his recent "Playboy" interview over-demonstrates, Young's big problem is that he listens to himself to find out what he thinks; there is a short circuit in his intellectual wiring. This is not to argue that Young is a fool. He is anything but — at least as I remember him from the Civil Rights March on Washington of 1963.

Martin Luther King's magnificent "I Have a Dream" speech was the media highpoint of the March — his equally moving "Letter from Birmingham Jail," published in the "New Leader," had made little splash except among the converted. With King suddenly a celebrity, a power struggle developed in his inner circle and, to make a long story short, Rustin left in dismay and Young eventually became crown prince. The feat was not accomplished by fasting and prayer but by remarkable craft.

As any large-scale study of successful politicians will indicate, there is no necessary correlation between shrewdness and conceptual ability. The fact that Young could get elected from a Georgia congressional district 60 per cent white is not, in short, any guarantee he can construct realistic mind-pictures about the world.

To be specific, when Young and his acolytes Alford Lovenshtein and Brady Tyson think about South Africa, they visualize Birmingham, Ala., in 1963. The activities of the civil rights movement in the United States provide them their African modus operandi. But there's a problem: Birmingham cops in 1963 were surely not dedicated to racial equality, but to equate them with Afrikaner troops is terrifying. If it comes to race war in South Africa, the place will be awash in blood — most of it black. No friendly Federal district judge will be on hand in Soweto to issue injunctions to white machine-gunners.

Alaska Plan Would Share Oil Wealth With People

ANCHORAGE — (LENS) — Oil from Alaska's North Slope starts gushing through the pipeline, south of the port of Valdez, on July 1, a shade under eight years since the state sold its Prudhoe fields for $900 million. Now, says Gov. Jay Hammond, that "nest egg" is exhausted. State spending has mushroomed from $165 million in 1970 to an estimated $850 million next year.

To cover its budget deficit, Alaska has had to mortgage some of the state's future oil earnings by taxing the oil companies on their reserves in the ground. The additional $200 million this tax has raised has kept Alaska's finances nominally in the black during the past two years, but the money will have to begin to be deducted from the oil companies' taxes next year.

Hammond concedes that this was "a lousy way to be forced to do business." On May 5 he sent the state legislature a bill to create "Alaska Incorporated," a fund in which every Alaskan would be a shareholder. Its assets would consist of a quarter of the non-tax earnings from the state's oil and gas resources.

The governor took to the pages of the Anchorage Times recently, in a five-part series, to explain the motives behind the Alaska Inc. proposal — a "gigantic people's owned business corporation" — and to paint a gloomy picture of the rich state's finances.

Putting aside a part of Alaska's oil earnings is not a new idea. Last year Hammond signed a bill to create a permanent fund into which 25 per cent of the state's oil royalties, leases and bonuses would be put; without this fund all earnings would have gone into a general account to finance further increases in state spending. But what to do with the permanent fund, which should amount to over $1 billion by 1983, was left unsaid.

The governor's Alaska Inc. bill goes some way towards defining its purpose.

Alaska Inc. would be a 'Nest Egg' From Lease Sale Is Now Exhausted

cooperative in which each Alaskan who has lived in the state for five years by the time the scheme gets going in fiscal 1980 would be allotted, at first, one share. These shares could not be bought or sold. Newcomers would get shares five years after their arrival in Alaska.

A second share would be issued to residents after a further five years' stay. Thus, Alaska Inc. would encourage new residents to stay on and, by making eligibility contingent on filing a resident affidavit attached to income tax forms, Gov. Hammond expects to increase tax revenue and lower tax evasion.

A portion of the permanent fund's earnings would be distributed to Alaskans. It is over this provision that Hammond may run into opposition.

The dividend would probably be subject to tax, so it would amount to less in the Alaskan's pocket than, say, a tax credit for the same amount. Some politicians, moreover, think that the proceeds should go to the cities.

Hammond politely disagrees on both counts. "What about the individual who lives outside the municipality, or who makes too little to pay income taxes?" the governor asked in his Anchorage Times article.

Nonetheless, there is an element of legend in his proposal. The public has no reason to believe that it will have more control over cash in the permanent fund than it does over that in Alaska's state coffers. The new bill still begs the question of who will decide how Alaska Inc. invests its money, and some critics feel that elected officials in the state legislature are just as likely to make the right decisions as a presumably (but not necessarily) elected board of directors.

Neither criticism gets at the main motive behind Gov. Hammond's controversial bill: to find a way to check state spending.

Certainly there are still glaring examples of underspending — on education and infrastructure — as the governor admits.

But he and most of the business community fear that operating revenues and expenditures have got seriously out of line. Taxes have not been raised to pay for spending which is now five times greater than in 1970.

"Alaska is on far shakier financial ground now than in 1960," says Hammond. That was a year when Alaskans got a "dividend" of $200 each since the state took in $800 a head in taxes and only spent $600; when assets were much greater than liabilities; and when 98 per cent of recurring government spending was covered by recurring tax revenue. By 1976 all that had changed and only 39 per cent of spending was financed out of recurring revenue.

"That's a deplorable performance for a presumably lucrative enterprise," insists the governor. "Were we actually a business corporation, shareholders would throw us out on our ears." Even critics of certain parts of the bill agree, and Hammond should get most of it through the legislature by the end of the year.

Alaska Inc. will probably stir interest in a trans-Alaska gas pipeline. Authorities in Canada and America are still haggling over which is the best route to pipe the North Slope's gas southward, but most studies agree that Alaska would earn more if it kept the pipeline for itself rather than let Canada build it.

If Alaskans can look forward to yearly dividends from Alaska Inc. they will probably be more keen on the cooperative making profits out of the state's reserves of gas than on the environmental considerations which have delayed the oil pipeline for so long.

PIPE'S EYE VIEW: This view, taken from inside a piece of pipe, shows oil storage tanks at the terminal of the trans-Alaska pipeline in Valdez, Alaska. The storage tanks can hold up to six days of oil in case the pipeline has to be shut down for any reason (AP Wirephoto)

Nation's Fight Against Cancer Is Paying Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's fight against cancer is paying dividends in the form of fewer deaths, more effective drugs, and less expensive and more reliable tests for the disease, the acting director of the National Cancer Institute says.

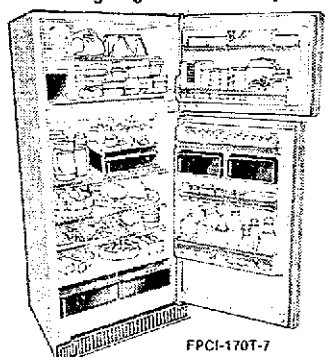

Dr. Guy R. Newell told a House subcommittee on Thursday that cancer deaths are decreasing among members of every age group under 55.

He said the country's efforts against the disease in the past five years have also meant development of new classes of anti-cancer drugs and less hazardous cigarettes.

House Party 'Last Bash'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The garden party at the British embassy was an affair worthy of the empire and the princess who held court there for the nobility of Washington.

But it also seemed the final revel of an era.

To David Walker, an embassy spokesman, Thursday's celebration of the Queen's anniversary was "the last big bash."

"We sent out about 1,500 invitations this year," he said, "but next year the guest list will be down to about 200."

Walker laid the party, attended by Princess Anne, was the last big celebration at any British diplomatic mission to denote the Queen's 25th year on the throne. Britain's economic difficulties, he said, have compelled embassies to cut back on traditional large-scale entertaining.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Little Changed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed today in a pause after the zig-zag pattern of the past several sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell .58 to 919.85 in the first half hour.

Losers held a slight edge on gainers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market staged a strong advance on Tuesday, turned weak on Wednesday and then swung upward again Thursday in a rally that faded near the close.

Analysts said the tug of war between buyers and sellers appeared to have reached a standstill for the moment.

As expected, New York's Citicorp today held its prime lending rate at 6 1/2 per cent for the coming week.

On Monday Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York cut its prime to 6 1/2, but no other major bank has matched the decrease to date.

Allis-Chalmers was the early volume leader among NYSE issues, off 3/4 at 32 in a 105,200-share block trade.

Twentieth-Century Fox, the "hot stock" on the Big Board since late last month because of enthusiasm over the new film "Star Wars," gained 1/4 to 23 1/2 in active trading.

Chain Buys Papers In Louisiana

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Gannett Company Inc., the newspaper giant that publishes 73 daily papers in 28 states, including Michigan, and Guam, Thursday completed its $54.1 million purchase of the Shreveport Times, the Monroe Morning World and the Monroe News-Star.

The three north Louisiana papers have a combined daily circulation of 140,000 and a combined Sunday circulation of 156,000. The Times is the largest of the three papers with 125,000 Sunday circulation and 90,000 daily. The Morning World's daily circulation is 37,000, with 51,000 on Sundays. The afternoon News-Star has a daily circulation of 13,000.

All three papers were formerly the property of Col. Robert Ewing. He bought the Times out of bankruptcy in 1908, founded the Morning World in 1929 and purchased the News-Star in 1930. Col. Ewing died in 1931, but the family retained ownership until Thursday.

Allen H. Neuharth, Gannett's chief executive, said local people will still control the papers' news operations and editorial decisions.

U.S. Job Picture Bright Into '78

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some non-governmental job surveys made in recent weeks suggest that the employment situation is undergoing a decided improvement that might stretch well into 1978.

Information in the surveys tends to support those analysts who feel the jobless rate, now 6.9 per cent, could fall toward 6.5 per cent by the end of the year, instead of inching back over 7 as some fear.

The Help-Wanted Index, a monthly measurement of want ads in 51 key newspapers, continues to move steadily higher after having plunged during the recession, reaching a low of just 74 in March 1975.

The index standard is 100 for 1967, the all-time high 132 in 1973. The April reading of 109 represents a tremendous improvement and also suggests considerable improvement to come.

Kenneth Goldstein, in charge of the survey for the Conference Board, a nonprofit research organization, considers it an accurate barometer of things to come. It is used by the Commerce Department as an official figure.

Another survey, a quarterly study of 5,000 businessmen by Manpower, Inc. and the University of Michigan Survey Research Center, is expected to confirm the brightening picture when released June 28.

Job forecasts by the Manpower-Michigan group for the first two quarters were highly optimistic and, said survey sponsors, "were very accurate predictors of what has actually happened."

Based on answers from 700 employers, the College Placement Council expects job hunting for college graduates to continue to be easier in 1978. The current year represented a decided improvement over 1976. Employers hired 18 per cent more grads than a year ago, and more than half the respondents said they expected to employ about the same number in the 1977-78 school year.

The Council, a nonprofit organization of career counselors and placement officers at colleges and personnel officers of corporations, found that only 7 per cent anticipate a drop in job offers and that 6 per cent are uncertain.

Those with technical training, especially engineering, will continue to be the most sought after, the council believes, along with graduates in computer science, geology, geophysics, metallurgy and business.

Northwestern University's Endicott Report for May showed a decided upswing in the market for bachelor degree holders since last November. For B.S. degrees the rise was 23 per cent, for those with M.S. degrees, 17 per cent.

The Endicott Report also found summer job prospects strong, with 32 per cent of 107 companies planning to hire more than a year ago.

Official figures from Washington show the May jobless rate fell one-tenth of 1 per cent to a seasonally adjusted 6.9 per cent, lowest in 30 months and symbolically important because it cracked the psychological barrier of 7 per cent.

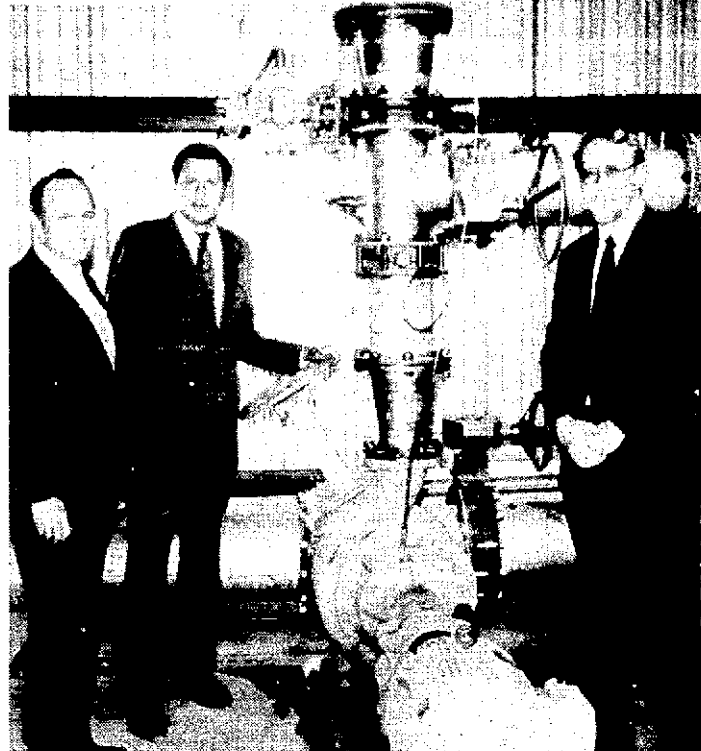

Some analysts still aren't convinced the rate will rise again to 7 per cent or more before the end of the year, but the flow of other strong indicators suggests this possibility might be fading.

Administration economists now consider the job situation to be sounder than was perceived earlier this year, even though the number of jobless workers actually rose a bit in May, but not as a percentage of the growing labor force.

NATIONS CAUTIONED
DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. President Lee Iacocca has cautioned developing nations not to enact mandatory codes which would hinder overseas development by multinational corporations.

SYSTEM START-UP: Watervliet Paper Co. officials stand at controls of $500,000 anti-pollution machinery they put into operation yesterday. Machinery at Watervliet plant will skim odor-causing clay particles from industrial waste waters before water is piped mile east of plant for spraying on 90-acre field. Clay particles in water had caused previous complaints by area residents of odors. New state-approved system will remove clay and end odors, paper company officials say. Standing at controls, from left, are George W. Lawton, manager of company's engineering department; Richard G. Osborne, company president; and Milton F. Stibal, vice president of operations. Chrysler Faces Quarterly Loss DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corporation could lose up to $35 million this quarter because of two local plant strikes, according to officials for the No. 3 automaker.

The reduction in net earnings, equal to between 50 and 55 cents a share, was confirmed by Chrysler officials Thursday.

Despite the reduction, financial analysts say Chrysler's after-tax profits could approach $100 million for the April-June period.

One Wall Street brokerage house, Sanford Bernstein & Co., had predicted earlier that Chrysler's second quarter earnings would be about $114 million or $1.90 per share.

Chrysler, which will not release its official quarterly results for another five weeks, refused to disclose its earlier or revised profit forecasts. The firm earned a record $155.1 million, or $2.58 a share, in last year's second quarter.

A company spokesman said a strike at its St. Louis, Mo. assembly plant from April 29 to June 13 cost the firm nearly 23,000 vans, while a week-long walkout at the key Sterling Heights stamping plant near Detroit led to a production loss of 8,000 cars.

Both walkouts were by members of the United Auto Workers union and involved disputes over new local contracts to supplement the three-year national agreement signed last fall.

A company spokesman said some of the lost production could be made up later in the year. But he said second-half schedules "are very tight," and the firm probably would have to schedule overtime to add the make-up units.

That would mean premium pay for workers and a resulting cut in profits for the full year, he said.

Truck sales currently are running at a record pace, and the Benton plant near St. Louis had been running at near capacity before the strike.

Jury Still Deliberating

DETROIT (AP) — Jury deliberation was to resume today in the trial of a Detroit man accused of shooting and killing his estranged wife — a schoolteacher — as her horrified young students watched.

After three hours of heated deliberation Thursday, the jury was excused for the night by Recorder's Court Judge Patricia Boyle.

Al Lewis, 47, estranged husband of slain teacher Bettye McCaster, faces possible life imprisonment if convicted of first-degree murder in the Nov. 10 shooting.

A MARRIAGE SURVEY in London showed that "pugnacious marriage" in which a couple fights is preferable to a "pseudo-intimate" relationship in which disagreement is avoided. . . . Helpful guide for dieters: Soup with the fewest calories is bouillabaisse; the cake with the lowest number is sponge or angel food; and the lowest calorie pie is a one-crust custard. . . . An English housewife claimed the world's record for peeling 62 pounds of onions in two hours. (But there wasn't a dry eye in the house!). . . . Physiognomists say that a fairly long nose, well-balanced with the eyes and mouth, shows strong authority and honesty. This type is also active sexually. . . . Doublers who draw circles and light-colored pictures probably have a loving and affectionate nature. . . . Dream interpreters say if you're flying (not in a plane but with your own body) it's a sign of frustration and dissatisfaction with events in your own life. . . . Color experts say gray helps cause depression and nonseriousness.

Today In History

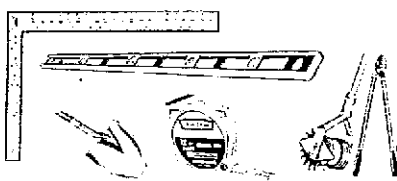

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Friday, June 17, the 168th day of 1977. There are 197 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1775, the Revolutionary War Battle of Bunker Hill was fought. The British attacked Americans manning positions across the Charles River from Boston. Twice the British were repulsed, but the outnumbered defenders finally retreated.
